A. F. of L., CIO Agree on Division of 16 Trades

SEE PROGRESS IN PARLEY FOR LABOR PEACE

Washington Hears Conferees Tentatively Adopt Initial Step Toward Truce.

MORE HARMONY SHOWN

Agreement on 'Several Issues' Near, Federation Group's Chairman Declares.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Tentative agreement on apportionment of 16 industries between the Committee for Industrial Organization and the American Federation of Labor was reported today as peace conferences resumed.

However, it was emphasized that no formal commitment has yet been made by either side.

A member of the 10-man CIO delegation said mutual understanding had apparently been reached concerning union demarcation in approximately 16 fields. He believed definite agreement could be easily ratified on these issues.

Add to Difficulties.

Other industries, listed by various conferees as between four and nine in number, presented added difficulties because of unionization by both groups in the same field.

THE CIO suggested appointment of committees to study details [illegible] of these problems and present them to the negotiating groups.

Charles P. Howard, CIO secretary and committee member, said he believed the conferees would agree to name subcommittees today.

George M. Harrison, chairman of the A. F. of L. three-man committee, said:

"We are pretty close together on several issues."

The CIO suggested that these groups work with the full committees now attempting to negotiate a truce and that they each be assigned to study one industry.

Call Session Early.

The CIO group met early to discuss the latest truce proposal with Philip Murray, chairman of the delegation.

The armistice plan was conceived by CIO Chairman John L. Lewis personally. It would provide for the creation of two autonomous departments—the CIO and the A. F. of L.—which would operate side by side and co-operate in unionization drives.

The departments would function independently and disputes would be mediated by a united labor council pending the outcome of treaty negotiations.

BRIDGE JOB LET

Mansfield Firm to Erect New Span at Bellville.

The Purdy Construction company, Mansfield, today was awarded a contract for construction of a steel and concrete bridge on route 3 over Clear Fork creek at Bellville on a bid of $47,098, dispatches from Columbus said.

Estimated cost of the 295-foot structure was $5,405 which represents an increase of $6,700 over a previous estimate which failed to attract bidders on the job.

The new bridge will replace a narrow steel structure. The contract calls for the employment of all laborers on the project from the rolls of the Mansfield National Re-employment office.

BACK ON JOB

400 Hollywood Stage Employes End Studio Dispute.

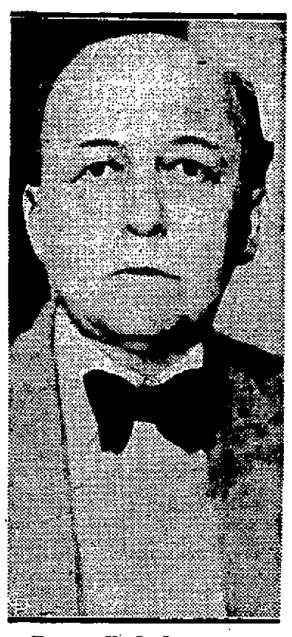
HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Swift peace sent 400 men back to work at the Columbia studio today after a one-day walkout called by the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes.

Production work by players including Richard Arlen, Mary Astor, Walter Connolly, Leo Carrillo and Edith Fellows was stopped by the walkout, which halted three pictures.

ACTRESS KILLS SELF

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Coroner S. R. Gerber gave a suicide verdict today in the death of Katharine Wick Kelly, Cleveland Playhouse actress who, police said, plunged to her death last night from a seventh floor apartment at the Cleveland club.

Fights Death



Former U. S. Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio today was gravely ill at his Cleveland apartment. Pomerene, shown above, retired from the senate in 1923 and was a prosecutor of the cases growing out of the Teapot Dome oil scandal in 1924.

TEST SANITY OF SHELBY FATHER

3 Physicians Named by Court To Examine Man Accused in Son's Traffic Death.

Three Mansfield physicians today had been appointed by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston to conduct a mental test of Pose Wade, Shelby, indicted last week by the grand jury for second degree manslaughter in the death of his son in a traffic accident several months ago.

Members of the examining committee, named at the request of County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott, are Dr. W. W. Pierce, Dr. P. M. Bein and Dr. Leopold Adams.

Marriott said Wade would not be arraigned on the indictment until the sanity report is submitted.

Wade is alleged to have been intoxicated at the time of the accident when the car he was driving turned over in a highway near Shelby, killing one of his two sons who were riding with him.

Dr. James Sawyer, 63, named in another indictment by the grand jury on a charge of illegally administering narcotics, is scheduled to appear before Judge Huston tomorrow morning. Dr. Sawyer won a continuance last week because his counsel was out of the city.

Others who will go before Judge Huston tomorrow to enter their pleas or receive sentence are Laura Ramsey, colored, indicted for cutting with intent to

FIVE SLAIN IN HOLY LAND RIOT

Jews Killed by Arabs as Violence Flares in Jerusalem.

JERUSALEM — (AP) — Five young Jews were shot to death today in a new outbreak of Arab-Jewish violence.

They were attacked by the Holy Land's hill terrorists near a quarry where four of the group worked. The fifth was their armed guard.

Low skimming British military planes and steel-helmeted police with dogs immediately spread a tight net in the Judean hills for the suspected killers.

BUSINESS AID PLAN STUDIED BY ROOSEVELT

Curtailment or Increase In Government Spending Forms Problem For President.

CALLS MORE CONFERENCES

Confers With Economists and Department Heads on Next Year's Budget

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt, making a concentrated study of the economic situation, must decide soon whether to curtail or increase government expenditures as an aid to business.

With that problem in mind, he continued today a series of conferences with federal economists and department heads concerning next year's budget, relief needs, and employment trends.

Urge Reduction.

Some of Mr. Roosevelt's recent callers have urged him to balance the budget, reduce WPA funds, and modify the capital gains tax to reassure merchants and industrialists.

Others have contended, however, that purchasing power has slumped and that federal "pump priming" funds should be continued or expanded.

Although aids stressed that the president has reached no conclusion, observers believed Secretary Morgenthau might give a hint of the administration fiscal attitude [illegible] before the League for Political Sciences in New York.

Morgenthau said his topic would be "Spending" and that he would give his views on government "pump priming."

The other principal source of government expenditures—work relief—is generally expected to continue during the winter along the lines of the present announced policy that no one shall starve.

Sees Relief Increase.

Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins predicted yesterday a seasonal rise in relief roles, but indicated a belief that there would be no shortage of funds.

Any increase in relief costs would soon boost the deficit for this fiscal year and make more difficult the fulfillment of Mr. Roosevelt's avowed intention to balance next year's budget.

Those who have argued that business would be helped by easing the capital gains tax were joined yesterday by Senator King (D-Utah), who called yesterday for repeal of the undistributed profits levy.

KILLS WIFE

Air Terminal Head Gives Up After Fatal Shooting.

GLENDALE, Calif.—(AP)—Paul Wright, 38, president of the Union Air Terminal, shot and killed his wife, Evelyn, and then critically wounded John Bryant Kimmel, airport traffic manager, early today when he told police he found his wife and Kimmel in an embrace.

Chief of Police E. B. Browne said Wright told him he shot his wife and Kimmel an old friend, in his palatial Verdugo Vista home.

The shooting occurred at 4:10 a. m., shortly after Wright and Kimmel, for years close friends, returned from Hollywood where they participated in an initiation ceremony of the O. B. club, an organization of aviators.

Kimmel was taken to the Burbank hospital for an emergency operation.

Weekly Football Pools Coin Easy Money—For Racket's Operators

Suckers Kick In With $1,500,000 a Week Picking Winners.

So you think you can pick the winners, do you? Not the horses, but the football teams, we mean.

Well, so do a lot of people, and as a result the folks who bet you can't are taking Mr. and Mrs. Football Fan to the tune of a million and a half dollars a week. Not in tickets to the games, but in pools, the newest threat of commercialism to college football.

Football pools were comparatively new last year, but this year they've more or less come into their own. And it is a racket, pure and simple, because the operators always win. They haven't a chance to lose.

Aside from the fact that it is to be condemned for taking money of countless suckers who are unaware of what "fall guys" they are for playing the pool, it is possible that the racket may grow out of bounds and work to the disadvantage of intercollegiate football's reputation.

To one who stops to figure out the fair odds, the football pool is obviously a sucker's game. Most of the printed slips list six of the closest games in the country. Players who pick only four games, and select the winners correctly, are paid five for one; those who take a chance in picking five winners get only ten for one, and those who shoot the works and try and pick all six correctly get but 20 to one for their money whereas the correct odds on the three combinations are 16 for one, 32 for one, and 64 for one. In other words, the pool operators pay off less than one-third of what they should when the sucker is lucky enough to win! [illegible] that there is someone who tries to fix it so it will be a sure thing. Fortunately, there appears little likelihood of such a possibility as far as football is concerned. Pool operators can sit back and let fate [illegible] their bankroll, especially since a tie game counts against the player.

Most objectionable feature of the racket, aside from the money it takes from thousands of suckers—[illegible] that such unsavory things are linked up with the sport of football at all.

They'll Dine on Snakes

PEBLO, Colo. — (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Woodyard cordially invited seven guests to eat rattlesnakes with them tonight.

Snakemeat is really very good roasted or stewed, Dr. Wilbur E. Bertram, one of the guests, explained.

Dr. Bertram, the Woodyards and two other friends killed 208 rattlers with .22 rifles in the wilds north of here.

DELINQUENT TAX LIST REDUCED TO NEW LOW MARK

Drive In Past Year Produces $154,400; Amount Now Due Cut to $364,000.

A delinquent tax drive in Richland county which has produced $154,414 in the past year, has reduced the county's outstanding delinquencies to $364,136, the lowest mark in many years, according to County Treasurer John E. Kolb.

A survey of the delinquent tax picture in the county, just completed by Kolb and Atty. Marshall C. Moore, special assistant prosecutor, shows that only $37,000 will be carried over into the new year as delinquent from the last year's tax charge. The balance, or $327,050, represent taxes delinquent two years or more.

The greater part of the 1936 [illegible] tax, $29,634 coming under that heading and the remainder in special assessments.

26 Foreclosures Pending.

The mounting collections of old levies has been due largely to the county's campaign against property owners who refused or neglected to pay, Moore said.

More than a score of properties have been sold at sheriff's sale in the past six months to collect old levies, and 26 foreclosure cases in volving about $29,000, are now pending in common pleas court.

Moore pointed out that property holders will have until Dec. 10 to pay old taxes without penalty or interest and to arrange payment installments under provisions of the Whittemore act.

The law provides for the abatement of penalties and interest on real estate and special assessment delinquencies previous to last year's collection. After it expires, the penalty will be collected and all old taxes must be paid in cash, Moore said.

CHINESE QUIT CITY, RETREAT AFTER 88 DAYS

Defending Forces Retire to "Winter Lines" Around Nanking In Night.

METROPOLIS CUT OFF

3,000,000 Bottled Up In City; Americans Breath Easier as Siege Ends.

SHANGHAI — (AP) — Shanghai fell into Japanese hands today with the retreat of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese warriors who had held out 88 days against combined Japanese army, navy and air forces.

The city was asleep and unaware of its fate when, shortly after midnight, Chinese forces began an orderly, quiet retreat toward their "winter line" protecting Nanking, the nation's capital.

Japanese, apparently, did not learn of the retreat until 8 a. m. (7 p. m. Mansfield, Monday).

Japanese Cut Off City.

The withdrawal enabled Japan to place a ring of steel around China's greatest port, cutting off the metropolis from the rest of the nation and bottling up three million Chinese residents, one million refugees and many thousands of Americans and other foreigners.

Railroads and highways in all directions were cut or blocked by Japanese, leaving only a few foreign and Japanese vessels as the sole connection with the outside world.

American and foreign communities breathed more easily, as if a long siege suddenly had been lifted. The plight of Chinese inhabitants and [illegible] have no means of escape and must reconcile themselves to a long period of isolation surrounded by Japanese troops.

Morale to Suffer.

While the loss of Shanghai undoubtedly will affect China's morale, at least temporarily, Generalissimo Chiang declared today that Shanghai operations were purely local and did not form a vital part of the nation's chief defenses.

The warfare, the generalissimo said, will be transferred at present to the great delta lands of the lake region west of Shanghai where China has several so-called Hindenburg lines.

"We will fight with the same vigor and determination in the future as we did at Shanghai," the generalissimo said.

Although it was impossible to determine precisely the financial loss and casualties of the two belligerents, neutral observers summarized cost of the conflict in Shanghai and North China areas thus far as, roughly:

Expenditures: Chinese, $250,000,000, Japanese, $600,000,000; property loss: Chinese, $200,000,000; casualties (dead and wounded): Japanese, 125,000; Chinese, 300,000; trade loss: Japanese $250,000,000; Chinese, $100,000,000.

'Moral Turpitude' Bars Duce's 'Love' From U. S.

Exclusion Order Based on Shooting of Count, Alleged Relationship With Mussolini Not Considered.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Magda de Fontanges, handsome Frenchwoman who professed to have been the mistress of Premier Benito Mussolini, was excluded from this country today on grounds of "moral turpitude."

The finding of moral turpitude was based, however, not on her alleged relationship with Il Duce but on the fact that she shot Count Charles de Chambrun, former French ambassador to Italy, in Paris last March. She claimed at the time that she wounded the count because he had broken up her affair with Mussolini.

Detained Aboard Ship.

Mme. Fontanges arrived yesterday on the French liner Normandie and was detained overnight aboard the vessel.

Today she was taken by ferry to Ellis Island, where a special board of inquiry composed of immigration officials held a two-hour secret hearing. At the conclusion of the hearing the board announced that Mme. Fontanges would be excluded "because of commission of a crime involving moral turpitude, to wit, assault with a dangerous weapon."

Attorneys for Mme. Fontanges, who came here to be a night club entertainer, announced they would appeal the decision to the immigration board of review in Washington. This procedure usually requires about three weeks, during which time Mme. Fontanges will remain at Ellis Island.

'MUCH OBLIGED'

That's Only Reward Tailor Gets for Returning Lost $1,598.

NEW YORK—Herman Rosenzweig, a tailor, found a wallet containing $1,598 in cash while pressing a pair of pants.

He returned the money and was rewarded with a "much obliged."

"Not even a nickel he gave me," said Rosenzweig, "but I don't feel bad. What you don't steal you haven't got."

LOOTS HOTEL

Gunman Flees With $300 After Menacing Clerk, Two Aids.

AKRON—(AP)—A well dressed young man who fled with more than $300 after a holdup this morning in the lobby of an Akron hotel was sought by police today. The bandidt took the money from cash drawers after pointing a gun at M. A. Crosby, clerk, and two bell boys.

CRASH KILLS WOMAN

SPRINGFIELD — (U.P.) — Mrs. Daisy C. Warwick, 60, of Springfield, died last night in a hospital, of a skull fracture received several hours earlier when struck by an automobile driven by Keith William, 24, of Springfield.

11,000 IDLE

Hudson Plant Closed by New Labor Difficulties.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—Hudson Motor Car company's plant was closed to approximately 11,000 workers today after labor difficulties had arisen in the paint department.

A company spokesman said the plant was closed because of trouble which developed after some workers in the paint department had been laid off. Other department employes objected, refusing to work, and the factory was ordered closed.

"The matter is now under discussion and it may be settled by late today," the Hudson spokesman said. "In that event, the plant will be re-opened tomorrow."

LIQUIDATES 10 RED PLOTTERS

Soviet Executes Terrorists Who Planned to Kill Stalin.

MOSCOW—(AP)—A Tiflis newspaper today reported the execution of ten confessed terrorists convicted of plotting to assassinate Joseph Stalin, general secretary of the Communist party, in 1933 and 1935.

Those shot included Mikhail and Vassili Lakoba, relatives of the late Nestor Lakoba, a former president of the Abkhazia republic. The band was reported to have confessed a plot to kill Stalin with the aim of separating Abkhazia from the Soviet union.

ASKS RECOUNT

Opponents of $40,000 Bond Issue Protest One-Vote Majority.

LEBANON—(AP)—The Warren county board of elections was called upon today to recount ballots cast Nov. 2 in two precincts, in an effort to determine the fate of a proposed $40,000 school bond issue.

The issue, affecting the Harlan-Butlerville district, was approved by one vote, according to an official tabulation last week. On two previous occasions it had been defeated.

LOSES BY VOTE, ASKS RECOUNT

Lexington Village Clerk Files Application With Election Board, Posts Deposit.

Defeated by one vote for clerk of Lexington at last Tuesday's election, J. H. Wiles, incumbent, today filed an application for a recount with the county board of elections.

Wiles lost to Robert Lawrence by a vote of 125 to 124 in the nonpartisan election. With his recount application Wiles submitted a $10 deposit which will be returned to him in the event the recount shows him the winner.

If Wiles' vote is unchanged by the recount or he loses votes as a result of it, the $10 will go into the county treasury, election board officials said.

Both candidates for the Lexington clerk's post will be invited to the recount which probably will be made Friday night, George C.

STORES TO MARK ARMISTICE DAY

Two Minutes of Silence Will Be Observed at 11 a. m. Thursday.

Mansfield's retail stores will observe two minutes of silence at 11 a. m. Thursday in commemoration of Armistice day, V. H. Lodde, secretary of the Retail Merchants association, announced today.

The period of silence is an annual custom in the stores, Lodde said. At the same hour members of the Earl D. McVey post, American Legion, will hold their ceremonies at the Doughboy monument in Central park in honor of the war dead.

FREEDOM NEAR

State Hints Boy Who Killed Writer Will Be Freed.

MUSKEGON, Mich. — (AP) — A juvenile court hearing for 15-year-old Foster Steven, who shot and killed Floyd C. Peterson, his foster mother's suitor, was scheduled for resumption today with the prosecution indicating the boy would be freed.

Prosecutor Fred Piatt said after testimony yesterday by Mrs. Ruby L. Gee, Whitehall, Mich., widow and foster mother of Steven, that the boy evidently killed Peterson because he believed her life was in danger.

Mrs. Gee testified that Peterson, 43-year-old Grand Rapids, Mich., newspaperman, had threatened to kill her. Peterson had been drinking she said and was "crazed."

PAY CUTS RESTORED

CANTON—(U.P.)—All elected city officials today were back on their 1929 salary basis. At a meeting of city council, a 10 per cent pay cut was ordered restored.

Hurls Baby From 7-Story Building, Then Kills Self

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Mrs. Margaret Begge, 42, threw her five-months-old daughter, Margaret, from the roof of a seven-story building early today, then jumped herself.

Police found her body in the street, the baby's on the roof of a parked automobile.

Both were killed instantly.

The tragedy occurred in one of the most crowded tenement districts of New York's lower east side. The family is extremely poor.

Mrs. Begge awoke from her sleep before dawn. Quietly, so as not to disturb her sleeping husband, she picked up baby Margaret, sleeping in the same room, and made her way through the dank, dark corridors of the old tenement, up the creaking steps to the roof. An instant later she and her baby were hurtling to the street.

Her husband, Michael, told police she had complained lately of a strange "buzzing noise" in her head.

State To Halt Racketeering In Liquor Permits, Leonard Says

The state board of liquor control will act "in the near future" to stop liquor permit racketeering, Wellington T. Leonard, Mansfield member of the board, was quoted as saying today.

Leonard, according to Associated Press dispatches from Columbus, asserted that the board had learned that many holders had sold permits to brokers who resold them at many times their value.

"The board has received word of racketeering in Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Toledo and nearly every other metropolitan area," he said.

"We have found that night club permits, obtained for $1,000, have been resold for as much as $3,500, even when the permit is about to expire.

"The board has informally discussed methods of halting the practice and I believe action will be taken in the near future."

Racketeering developed after the saturation point in hard liquor and night club permits had been reached, Leonard asserted. Board regulation, he said, prevented issuance of additional permits but persons already possessing them could renew annually, making their sale highly desirable.

Leonard said he believed the board would adopt regulations prohibiting reselling of permits but providing for adjustments where death, bankruptcy or other unforeseen circumstances interrupted a business.

15 Students Offer Blood To Injured Fraternity Brother

Fifteen fraternity brothers stood ready today to give some of their blood for Michael Ondov, 24, of Lakewood, a Wittenberg senior, who is in Mansfield General hospital, critically injured in an automobile accident last Friday.

The 15, all students with Ondov at Wittenberg, are members of Pi Kappa Alpha.

After tests were given, however, it was found that only one of the 15 volunteers had blood that "typed" with that of Ondov. Doctors also decided that a blood transfusion was not necessary immediately.

The fraternity group learned last night in Springfield that Ondov's condition was so serious that a blood transfusion was being considered. They didn't hesitate, but piled into automobiles and sped to Mansfield, a distance of a hundred miles.

After the tests were given, the group remained in Mansfield over night, and left this morning to resume their studies. Doctors who are caring for Ondov said they had also found blood donors in Mansfield whose blood typed with his.

Ondov suffered a fractured back when the car in which he and six other Wittenberg students, all going to their homes near Cleveland, overturned near Hayesville. Also injured was Miss Helen Trezlow, 17, Bedford. She was released from the hospital Sunday.

QUEEN BETTER

Marie Gaining, Specialists Say, After Consultation.

BUCHAREST, Rumania—(AP)—Dowager Queen Marie, suffering from an internal hemorrhage, appeared somewhat improved today.

Specialists were more optimistic after yesterday's consultation at which treatment was formulated.

King Carol, however, attending a dinner for the Cavalier order, gave the impression of deep concern.

Loves Boy But Fights With Him

By VIRGINIA LEE

YOU KNOW, much as I sympathize with the young folk and all their woes, sometimes I am inclined to think the parents have pretty tough times and I feel very sorry for them.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl of 16 years old. I've been going steady with a boy named Bill for three months. His mother doesn't like me very well because when I started going with him we stayed up late, sometimes 4 o'clock, but now he goes home no later than 1 o'clock because I am a senior in high school and I am very seldom with him on school nights.

"I am very much in love with Bill most of the time, but sometimes when I am with him I seem to hate him and then we quarrel and sometimes we are angry for a week, and then I see him out some place and he comes over and talks with me, but he never comes to the house to make up with me.

"I've tried going out with other boys, but I am bored to death when I am not with Bill, and I have a horrid time in spite of how the other boys try to show me a nice time. Would you continue going with Bill if you were me?

"Another thing: I took him to see one of my girl friends and he and his boy friend, who goes with my girl friend, went to see her the first time they had a chance and he told me about it. SUE."

Just a couple of kids, are you not, Sue? Quarreling and making up, loving and hating. Don't take your love for Bill too seriously, that is all I ask. And don't try to keep him on a leash. Let him go to see other girls if he wants to, and you go out with other boys. No matter about that jealous feeling. Bury it deep in your heart and let no one know of it. The suffering that it brings is all part of the game of youth and love and growing up.

But, my dear little girl, no wonder Bill's mother thinks you are pretty dreadful—staying up until 4 in the morning, and you only 16!

I think 1 o'clock is much too late for you two to be up. Your parents are too lenient with you, dear child. Eleven o'clock is about the time the young man should be leaving. You see, I believe in boys and girls "going together" and having a certain amount of freedom, but I do think a few sensible rules about late hours and too many dates should be absolutely enforced. Don't you think I am right, from a perfectly unprejudiced standpoint?

SECRET DATES — One recipe flaky pastry, one package pasteurized dates, two slices canned pineapple, one egg yolk, three tablespoons milk. Stuff the pitted pasteurized dates with small pieces of canned pineapple drained from the juice; roll pastry to a thickness of one-eighth inch. Cut into small squares (each square large enough to completely enclose a stuffed date). Wrap each date in pastry, folding each pastry square to form a triangle; pinch edges together tightly. Place the wrapped dates on a baking pan. Brush the tops with egg yolk which has been diluted with milk. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) until brown.

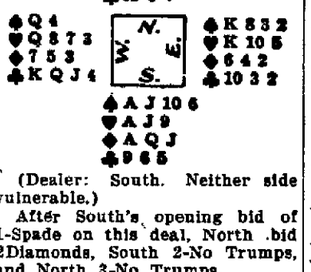
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

KEEPING PREPARED

WHEN YOU finesse against both a K and a Q, expecting the first trial to lose but the second one to win, you may desire to repeat the successful finesse another time. This necessitates keeping the entry in the hand which leads for the finesse. Such being the case, it is better on the first round of the suit to lead a small card, so that another card from the J-10-9 sequence can remain in the desired hand later.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

After South's opening bid of 1-Spade on this deal, North bid 2Diamonds, South 2-No Trumps, and North 3-No Trumps.

The club K was the opening lead against this contract and South did not win a trick in the suit until the third round. His next move was to play the spade 9 which lost to West's Q. West cashed his fourth club and returned a diamond. South won with the A, cashed the diamond Q and overtook the diamond J with the K to cash the diamond 10 and try another finesse in spades. The 5 was led from dummy and the 10 finessed, which held, but it was only possible to get one more trick in spades and consequently the contract was set one.

With only one entry into the dummy, after the club A was knocked out, and hoping for two more finesses, the correct play of spades was to have led the 5 on the first round and finessed the 10. Then when the dummy was entered with the diamond K, the spade 9 could have been led, and if it held another finesse could have been tried from dummy.

Tomorrow's Problem.

What is the correct bidding on the North-South cards of this deal?

Questions From Young Women

Dear Mrs. Post: A man I see occasionally has just lost his mother. I don't know what I should or should not do to express my condolences. I would like to know, too, whether I should go to the funeral services, which are not private and are being held in church. I did not know his mother, nor do I know any other members of the family.

Answer: I am supposing that you do not know this man very well, or you would not be asking me whether you may show your sympathy at such a time. In any case, write him a note, of course, and tell him how sorry you are to hear of his great loss. Whether or not you go to the funeral would depend upon what you think he would like to have you do. If you are in doubt about this either because you know him only slightly, or because your presence would be conspicuous and therefore cause comment, then don't go.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it obligatory to ask a sister of the groom to be a bridesmaid under any circumstances? I wanted to have my two sisters and a lifelong friend as my only attendants. The groom has one sister and while I am very fond of her, she is not especially near to me. Is there any other place I can give her, which would be better than that of every other guest, without having to enlarge the wedding party itself?

Answer: Although it is customary to ask the sister of the groom to be a bridesmaid when she is of the same age as the bride, and the bride is having many attendants, it is not obligatory that she be asked when there is considerable difference in age and when the bride is having no more than two attendants. The fact that you are having three will perhaps make people wonder why you did not make it an even number; that is, your two sisters could walk together and the one who is bridesmaid of honor would be singled out by holding your bouquet and standing on your right at the reception. But you alone can decide whether you want to carry out your plan as it was, or could be willing to change it.

STEWED POTATOES — Three cups diced potatoes, three tablespoons butter, two cups milk, salt, pepper. Melt the butter in a frying pan, add the potatoes and seasoning, and stir over the fire until the fat is absorbed. Add the milk and cook slowly about half an hour. More milk may be added if needed.

Improve Mouth Shape With Lipstick

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

THE BEAUTIES of the Far East use betel nut as a substitute for lipstick. This they chew persistently, and the scarlet juice stains their lips a vivid red hue. This method of staining the lips, of course, isn't anything like our scientific methods and it certainly cannot shape and outline the lips very artistically.

So much can be done to modify and improve the shape of the mouth through the clever application of lipstick, that every woman owes it to herself to attempt to acquire skill in the use of this cosmetic.

If Lips Are Thin.

If you possess lips that are too thin, blend your lipstick a little beyond their actual upper and lower confines when applying your makeup. This must be done very delicately however, else the red will show too obviously on the white skin outside your lips. If your lips are too thick, carry your powder base and powder down over the margin of your lips, and apply your lipstick over a smaller area. Don't follow the natural outlines of your lips exactly in this case. Keep the red a little within the line of their edge. If your mouth is too wide, do not let the color run out to your mouth corners, but exaggerate the Cupid's bow a bit. And if your mouth is too small, apply your lipstick rather heavily, and carry it out to the very corners of your mouth.

To possess a truly alluring, provocative smile and an expressive mouth, however, you must do more than merely learn to wield your lipstick or lipstick pencil wisely. You must also see to it that you keep your lips mobile and flexible. And there's nothing better for this purpose than a few good mouth exercises.

One of the best exercises for giving the lips mobility is to close your mouth tightly, close your nasal passages and then blow. This puffs out the cheeks and just seems to blow any mouth lines away. And it gives the mouth muscles limberness and flexibility. This is an exercise that should be practiced frequently, however, if good results are desired.

In so far as molding the mouth contours is concerned, chewing and the movements involved in whistling and blowing bubbles are excellent exercises for keeping the lips supple and expressive. Another effective exercise is pronouncing the vowels aloud, exaggerating the lip movements at the same time. Such exercises increase the expressiveness of the lips and develop the mouth contours.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

'For the love of Allah and his head prophet!" Dicky exploded. "Why do you want to telephone Katie at this hour of the night? She's one of those daylight-rising idiots. You'll be able to get her early in the morning.'

I discounted the protest with the celerity born of marital knowledge and experience. Many wives will agree with me that their voicing of any proposal the least bit out of the ordinary is the signal for violent objections from their husband, even though they may be planning the same thing themselves.

"I want her to start at daylight," I explained quietly, going on down the stairs. "Mary and Noel are coming tomorrow, and I want Katie and Jim here before the guests arrive — especially Jim."

Dicky grasped my arm and turned me around on the stairs so that I was facing him.

Katie Waiting.

"Look here!" he said. "You're up to something. What is it? Tell Papa!"

I laughed as I twisted away from him.

"When I find out what it is, myself, I'll tell you," I said evasively, and hurried on down the stairs to the telephone, hearing from behind me a husbandly monologue on the general idocy of the feminine sex.

But Katie did not share his opinion of my folly. When she heard my voice in perfunctory apology for calling her so late, she was positively lyric in her apparent joy at my summons.

"Oh, Meesis Graham, my Darling Meesis Graham," she gurgled. "Me, I tink you nefer, nefer, coom home und send for your Katie no more. Me, I vait und I vait, und I listen for telephone until mine ears stretch oudt like saucers. Ven you vant me, tonight? I pull dot lazy Jeem oudt of bed by hees heels. Vot you tink, he go to sleep already yet, but I stay oop und study some more on my detectatuff correspondence course."

Post-Graduate Course.

I choked back a laugh which would have been a deadly offense to her dignity. But my risibles were aching as I put a question, warranted by past observations on Katie's "detecatuff correspondence course" of which she is so ludicrously proud.

"But, Katie. I thought you graduated from that course and received your diploma."

I heard a suppressed snort from Dicky behind me, and knew that he was visualizing that ornate diploma with its glittering star which Katie has so often exhibited to us.

"Oh, sure ting," she said loftily. "Me, I graduated, all right, but now I take vun vot you call eet—post sumting—"

"Post-graduate course?" I ventured chokingly, the while I shook a warning fist at Dicky, who was bent nearly double with silent laughter that threatened to become audible.

Will Come Tomorrow.

"Yah! dot's eet," she said smugly. "Und am I glad I stayed oop to study eet tonight! I no have to keep you vaiting. Now I go vake dot Jeem."

"No, no Katie," I expostulated. "I don't need you tonight. But if you and Jim could start about daylight tomorrow, I'd be very glad. Miss Mary and Mr. Noel are coming to the farm tomorrow."

"Vot time dey get dere?" Katie demanded sharply.

"Probably about three or four in the afternoon," I told her.

I could hear her quick sibilant breath of relief.

"Dot okay den," she commented. "Me, I haf time to get my tings settled, und feex nice tea ven dey coom, und dinner at night. You know sometings. You keep dot Ticer vomans oudt of my keetchen tomorrow. Me, I get dot dinner all by mine own self. Den I know eet fit to eat."

"What time will you get here?" I asked, feeling that if the colloquy lasted much longer, my laughter muscles would not stand the strain.

"Nine o'clock unless eet rains, den dot goofy Jeem tiuk he haf to drive slow."

Prudently I made no comment on this, but administered consolation instead.

"Then I'll send Mrs. Ticer home right after breakfast," I said with a grimace at Dicky.

THEATER

HOLLYWOOD FRONT: Comedian Phil Baker's little daughter, Muffett, is heartbroken because her daddy won't buy her something she wants very much. It is Edgar Bergen's dummy, Charlie McCarthy. Bergen, McCarthy and Baker are working on the Goldwyn Follies" set. . . . Worst casting of the season is Joan Blondell to play romantic lead opposite Leslie Howard. . . . The breath-taking beauty of the color photography in "Walter Wanger's Vogues" has started a series of new pictures in colors. Nearly completed is "Nothing Sacred" with Carole Lombard and Fredric March in natural colors. . . . The blonde and beauteous Zorina who is making her film debut on "The Goldwyn Follies" is not the Zorine, "queen of the Nudists" who appeared in Mansfield last season. Zorina is a continental dancing star, premier ballerina of the Ballet Russe at one time.

Love at Work.

Ann Sothern who has appeared with Gene Raymond in a number of romantic comedies, transfers her screen affections to Jack Haley in "Danger — Love At Work," which the Madison presents Wednesday and Thursday. The action revolves around the screen's balmiest family, the Pembertons. Even the chauffeur, the cook and the butler are off balance, and there is an uncle who is a philatelist and worth his weight in stamps. Mary Boland, who can be so delightfully nutty, plays the mother of the family. Edward Everett Horton is Miss Sothern's finance and Walter Catlett is the stamp collecting uncle. The Pixilated Sisters of "Mr. Deed's fame are members of the family.

* * *

Tragedy Makes Comedy.

The hilarious magic carpet scene in Eddie Cantor's latest comedy, "Ali Baba Goes To Town," as it appears, gives no indication that tragedy and death had a part in the making of it. While the pictures was being made, Cantor's stand-in was riding on the "flying carpet," when the part of the equipment broke, the player was plunged downward to the stage below and was instantly killed. The comedy, showing at the Ohio the first half of the week, shows the banjo-eyed comedian surrounded by pretty girls and extravagant scenes. Tony Martin, of radio fame, Roland Young, June Lang and Louise Hovick are seen in important supporting roles.

* * *

Romance Blooms.

A lovely blond adventuress and a gay adventurer, both bent upon stealing a diamond valued at more than a quarter of a million, match wits in "Dangerously Yours," the Majestic attraction for the middle of the week. Phyllis Brooks and Cesar Romero, aboard the ship which carries the famous jewel to America find that there are a number of other persons on the ship who are interested in the diamond. Before the boat docks at New York, one man has been murdered and romance develops between the two jewel thieves. A Crime Club novel, "The Westland Case," with Preston Foster as the super detective, is the second Majestic feature.

* * *

O'Brien Goes to Sea.

George O'Brien deserts the great open spaces of the west to go to sea in "Windjammer," which brings him and Constance Worth to the Ritz today and Wednesday and Thursday. The two escape from a sinister schooner carrying contraband and a captain who had planned to hold them for ransom. In a small boat in which they escape, they face the open sea without signal flares. But a flare is provided in a thrilling manner. The second feature is Marian Davies and Robert Montgomery in a romantic comedy, "Ever Since Eve," in which a playwright is inspired by a beautiful girl but kept in hand by an ugly secretary, without his knowing they are one and the same.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, November 10.

SUDDEN UPHEAVALS, with much commotion and excitement, is the presage based on the predominant astral influences. The result will not be adverse, as these unexpected and intensified conditions are in quest of splendid adventure, culminating in increased possessions, finances and general stability of the fortunes. A feminine influence or other private source may play a part in this, and may require a domestic readjustment and travel.

Those whose birthday it is are under a sign that precipitates very sudden and quite unexpected events, with upheavals, change and travel, but all in the direction of bettering the affairs and enlarging and stabilizing the fortunes as well as property values. Great enterprise, with domestic change in which feminine influence is a factor, is seen. Gasp all opportunities with sound judgment, not with confusion or excitement.

A child born on this day may have many original talents, with much initiative and spirit of adventure and speculation. These may bring it fine progress and solid fortunes, with probably some place in public service.

CHEF'S SALAD.—One small head of lettuce, one cucumber, one-half cup celery, one bunch of watercress, one bunch of radishes, two hard cooked eggs. French dressing. Cut up the lettuce and place in salad bowl. Chop up cucumbers, radishes, celery, watercress and eggs, and add to lettuce, pour on French dressing and toss lightly until greens glisten.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER X

For the first time in her life, from that moment on, Elna played desperately to win. The cards still ran against her, but, forgetting all the mathematical precision which to her made the game, she used her father's intuitive measures. Her play was a demoniac splendor, every card stamped upon her eyeballs. She tried wild double finesses, improbable "squeezes." Her score crept upward, point by point. Her face remained inscrutable, save for its intensified pallor. This was not a mere card game, but an obscure duel between her and Roger's wife.

"A lady," Elna thought fleetingly, "would have let me know in advance that her bridge crowd plays for high money stakes. She ought to have given me the chance to say whether I could afford it. She tricked me-trapped me."

But there was scant time to think. The next hand brought a turn of the tide. Elna glimpsed a little slam—with luck. Her partner, a cautious player, and more than a little afraid of Elna's recent tactics held her support down to the irreducible minimum. Elna risked it.

The moment she saw her dummy's cards, she recognized that, though not strong in themselves, they filled in all her own weak spots. The little slam, which she could not avoid making, would wipe out her minus score. Mrs. Ainsworth, her opponent at the time, had even doubled, counting on Elna's tendency to overbid and her persistent run of bad luck, plus lack of support from her partner.

Two cards remained to be played, to which Elna and dummy held double winners against any lead.

"Well done, partner!" the dummy exclaimed. She was the short, blonde woman who had warned Elna about the money stakes. Her eyes were friendly, and Elna flashed her a glance of gratitude.

"Oh, I'm so sorry!" Mrs Ainsworth exclaimed from Elna's right "I'm afraid it's a misdeal and this hand will have to be cancelled I have only one card left in my hand."

* * *

Instantly a babble of voices arose, arguing rules. They sounded far away. Elna felt utterly cold inside, utterly without emotion. Her voice was flat, without feeling, but it stilled the uproar.

"I am perfectly willing to relinquish the hand," she said. "But Mrs. Ainsworth, your second card is on the table, on top of your one trick. I noticed you place it there a moment ago."

Her own horror at her words deadened her ears to the sudden silence. They were truth, but there were times when truth was worse than any lie. She had accused her hostess of cheating.

"Forgive me, Mrs Ainsworth, that was unpardonably rude. Let's just call this hand off, if you don't mind," she said coolly.

"But you can't!" The voice of Elna's partner was shrill with indignation. "See, here is the card." Her quick fingers nabbed it, placed it face upward on the table

"I'm afraid you were wrong this time, Holly," Mrs Ainsworth's partner said with a hint of sternness. "Miss Jepson is entitled to her small slam"

"Oh, it must have been a mistake! The card must have dropped accidentally! I'm so sorry! Mrs. Ainsworth answered three pairs of accusatory eyes

* * *

"Odd coincidence that you should try to do Miss Jepson out of the first good hand she has had this afternoon," she prodded Mary Harriman had known Holly Ainsworth from childhood. Moreover, she thoroughly enjoyed a good row, especially when her acid tongue was the immediate cause.

"Oh, but, Miss Jepson! Surely you don't think . . . ' There is no offense, I hope," Mrs. Ainsworth gasped

Elna waited a second. She had not meant to make a scene, but she had made it. Humor was the universal solvent. Let the scene dissolve, turn into the trifle it was. What would Oscar Jepson have done? What would Roger Ainsworth have done? She knew the answer to the first question, but not the second. She must be funny at all costs.

She leaned across the table.

"Pistols for two. Coffee for one?" she quoted smiling. Then lowering her voice purposely to a melodramatic bass, she added "Remember the card games that have led to death—pokers or swords or what have you? Watch your cards in the future."

The exaggeration won its tribute of laughter, as she had meant it to do. Yet six witnesses were to hold these words against her.

* * *

"Whee-eet!" The shrill whistle, made by two fingers between teeth, had been a familiar signal since Elna's childhood. But she was startled to hear it beneath the laboratory window on a Sunday morning. She flung open the window and leaned out. Curtis Graham's round, freckled face grinned up at her.

Elna's spirits rose unaccountably as she hung up her laboratory apron and locked the door behind her. She ran down the steps, skipping them two at a time.

"What's up?" she asked, one foot lifted to the running board of Curtis' car.

"We're going mushroom picking. Just the right rain, the right mud for it."

"And probably the wrong mushrooms," Elna said with her satirical, tilted smile. "All my mushrooms would be toadstools. I'm a chemist, not a botanist. Besides, where are they?"

* * *

By this time the car was in motion. "Lady, I know my mushrooms," Curtis assured her gravely. "You won't get the chance to murder me with a toadstool" He reached to turn on the windshield wiper against the mist that covered the glass. The drizzle seemed to shut them in. Her mind, ran back to Curtis, aged 12, announcing his presence with that piercing whistle as he leaned the Jepson fence. This was fun, sheer childish fun. He could not possibly have guessed how much she needed an interim of forgetfulness The thought reminded her to ask, "How did you know I'd be at the laboratory on Sunday?"

'Just sleuthing," Curtis answered. "You were at that hen party yesterday. Check. Probably meant clothes Clothes take time. But you'd slip back to finish your work. Right? You won't tell me where you live, so I have to catch you where I can find you."

"You infant!" Elna laughed.

Graham's breath caught at the sound of that laughter Not for a long time had he heard Elna laugh

"And the certified public accountant who knows his mushrooms?" she jibed.

"I'm out to wreck all your illusions," Curtis answered, as the car swerved into a side road between green hills "Met a chap yesterday I used to know. He went to agricultural college, has a ranch out this way. He told me to come out any time and forage in his pastures."

Curtis stopped the car at the side of the branch road. The spirit of childhood seized Elna again. She gripped his hand and together they ran up the slippery green slope to the summit of the hill. The drizzle made shining drops in her black hair. Panting, she reached the top meadow.

Picking mushrooms turned out to be more work than she had anticipated. Curtis produced two folded paper bags and two paring knives from his raincoat pocket.

"Don't pull them up," he told her. "Cut them. Otherwise they won't grow again," he explained. After that he wandered away.

Elna squatted and cut, squatted and cut. At first she wanted to outdo Curtis; then she forgot him. Her muscles were sore, her hands caked with mud. Finally the varying gray of the sky and the heavy green of the grassy meadow had their way with her. This hilltop meadow, beyond all else, was peace. Elna did not even remember the moment when she laid her coat on the wet grass, and went to sleep.

Then Curtis, dripping and muddy, was standing over her.

"It was lovely, I forgot." Elna, still incoherent with sleep, sat up rubbing her eyes.

Curtis picked up her half-filled bag of mushrooms and lifted her to her feet. Back in the car again, a vacuum bottle of steaming tea and a box of sandwiches.

"I'm hungry," he announced. Elna's eyebrow wavered upward as she bent her head over the hot drink. He still liked the idea of taking care of her, and failed to realize how transparent he was. Not for himself were the tea and sandwiches made! But for these few hours she had forgotten Roger and Roger's wife.

As the car slithered from the ranch road to the highway, she reminded him, "You didn't ask me a thing about the card party."

"Good?" The query was noncommittal

"Very serious," she answered "By the time I'd heard that all daughters must be sent to private school lest they be contaminated by public school boys who might speak the language of Dante at home, I lost my temper and got into a cat fight."

"You crazy little fool!" Curtis turned his head long enough to grin at her "Was it worth it?"

"No," Elna admitted, "but at least I learned how the other half lives. And I caught a woman cheating—and I called her for it."

"You Jepsons!" Graham's face flushed with frank annoyance. Then abruptly. "What's the present idea of being a hermit?"

"I'm not!" Elna protested hotly. Then she added contradictorily "It's only that I like it that way."

Curtis turned his head to answer her

"Look out!" Elna called, too late. A small delivery truck dashed without warning from a side road, hidden by trees, into the slippery highway. She heard the squeal of brakes, felt the sliding of wheels. This was the end! She would never see Roger again, never tell him what she thought of Mrs. Ainsworth

The car skidding leaped a fence, bounced, landed against a telegraph pole.

"Are you all right?" A hatful of ditchwater splashed across Elna's face.

Blood was streaming down Curtis' face. Elna had never felt so wet, cold and disheveled in her life. A bump on her head hurt horribly.

The truck, after a swerve, had sped on its way, unheeding.

Elna's head was clearing. She heard Curtis saying, "You were knocked out. I thought you were dead."

"What's the matter with your face?" she said.

"Noth[illegible] but a few scratches. I got th[illegible] out of the window." Curtis was matter-of-fact. Not for worlds would he have had Elna know the sobbing catch in his throat when he filled his cap with water to fling over her—the moment when he thought, "I have killed Elna."

"Let's see if we can get the car out. Come and help. Try backing We'll manage, I think I'll push.

They did manage, bit by bit. The car jiggled out of the ditch. With broken headlights and crushed fenders, it resumed the highway.

"I only wanted to give you a good time," Curtis remarked, breaking a long silence. "I thought you'd had hell at that bridge party. But I guess I'm not very efficient."

"You're right about the bridge party And your ideas of a good time are at least original. Don't mind, child. You meant well." Her smile robbed the words of sarcasm, gave them a gentle, humorous friendliness. She was shivering so violently from reaction, cold and dampness that she did not see Curtis wince.

"Half a shake." He stopped the car, leaped out, opened the rear compartment, and was beside her again with a heavy army blanket, which he wrapped around her.

"There you are, squaw," he said as he tucked it about her knees.

"Thanks. We'll have to hurry. I really must get back." Fatigue enveloped her. She glanced at her wrist watch. Roger might drop in this evening to explain why he called her apartment a haven, why he had been so eager for her to form her own opinion of his wife. A brief vision of her fire, making red flickers against the sides of the brass andirons, was the last thing she remembered. She was awakened only when Graham's car ground to a stop before her own in the university grounds.

* * *

Gaily she waved him farewell when she opened the car door. "It's really all right, but I do want to dash home to a hot tub" She reached inside the car and patted his shoulder. "Don't bother about me. I shan't even catch cold. And you'll have to admit that, as a picnic, this one has had its bit of excitement. See you soon again."

Curtis Graham sat for a long time gazing at the bag of mushrooms which she had left, forgotten, on the seat. His expression was one of boyish and irrational disappointment. But no one would have thought of his face as boyish when, with set jaws, he picked up the sodden bag and hurled it through the window into the midst of a group of shrubbery.

Elna let herself into her apartment, touched a match to the fire, and forced herself to refuse to hurry or to acknowledge that she was listening for the buzzer. With the same conscious deliberation, she drew a steaming hot bath. She even shampooed her hair. Then, while it dried, she cooked and ate a double portion of scrambled eggs. Coffee was ready in the electric percolator, but she left the adjustment unattached. Then she put on the new costume which she had not worn to Holly Ainsworth's party.

Elna smiled at the glowing fire. "If he comes, he comes. If he doesn't, all right," she told herself aloud. Not even to herself did she admit that the prepared but unattached percolator was for Roger.

The buzzer rang.

"I shall have to tell him the truth, if he asks me," she thought in a brief moment of panic, as she pressed the button and then stooped to attach the percolator.

* * *

Purposeful, with rapid strides, Roger entered the room as she opened the door for him. He laid his brief case down.

"More papers to go over?" Elna asked Can they wait a few minutes? I'm just brewing my after-dinner coffee. Would you like some?"

"Coffee? Yes, please." Roger hung his raincoat over a chair, pulled the easy chair closer to the fire and propped one foot against the brass andiron.

"Coffee before business? Very well." Elna's face, bent over the percolator, did not betray her sudden flash of impatience.

State Calls Witnesses in Ex-Sheriff's Murder Trial

PICK 3 WOMEN, 9 MEN TO HEAR POMEROY CASE

Attorneys to Give Opening Arguments In Slaying of Republican Leader.

POMEROY, O.—(AP)—Nine men and three women jurors filed into Meigs county's nearly-century-old courthouse today to hear opening statements in the trial of Sheriff Roscoe O. Fowler, charged with second degree murder in connection with the death of Late Williamson, former Republican executive committeeman.

Fifty-one persons were examined before the jury was seated late yesterday. Eight of the men picked are farmers, the ninth a fur dealer. All the women jurors are housewives. An alternate, selected to hear evidence in the event one of the regular jurors is incapacitated during the trial, is also a farmer.

Exhaust All Challenges.

Many of those examined were dismissed for cause after questioning by the prosecution and counsel for the defense, both of whom exhausted all their peremptory challenges.

Through most of the day, Williamson's widow watched the selection from a front row seat.

Judge Frank M. Acton of Lancaster, assigned to preside at the trial by Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt at the request of Common Pleas Judge C. E. Peoples, permitted the jurors to go home last night but told them to report today prepared to stay for the duration of the trial. The state was to call its first witnesses today.

Judge Peoples withdrew on the grounds he had taken an active part in the events leading to Fowler's arrest and indictment. He was instrumental in employing L. Crary Davis as special prosecutor after Williamson was found unconscious in the street last June 27, only a few blocks from the lodge hall where he had attended a party.

Williamson died July 17 and was buried but an exhumation was ordered and a skull fracture revealed. Judge Peoples convened a special grand jury and indictments against Fowler and others, 15 of them secret, were returned.

U.S. Ships Gold To France, Millions More "For Sale"

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Uncle Sam packed up $10,500,000 in gold for shipment to France today, and stuck a "for sale" sign on millions more.

The gold was purchased by the French stabilization fund, created a year ago when the franc left the gold standard. The transaction took place under the Anglo-Franco-American pact which seeks to prevent severe fluctuations in currency relationships.

It was the first time since March, 1936, that the United States had exported any of the metal.

Simultaneously, however, the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce reported that $10,000,000 worth of gold bars had been landed there from Japan in the last two days.

For four years gold has poured into this country from other nations, building our store to $12,800,000,000—more than half the gold in the world.

During those four years, the fixed price of $35 an ounce which the treasury paid for gold was the highest anyone in the world would offer. Yesterday, however, Europe was offering as high as $35.22 an ounce—a price exactly enough to cover the cost of the gold and its shipment across the Atlantic.

Called to testify in a damage suit trial yesterday, Miss Frances Thull, common pleas court stenographer, found herself taking down her own testimony for the court records as she replied to the defense counsel's queries. Judge C. U. It looks as if some one in the Brotherhood of the First Methodist church is deliberately inviting trouble, with the announcement that a husking bee will be held at the brotherhood meeting Thursday night, and that "all red ears and what goes with them will be presented to the best looking women over 40." In the first place it's going to be rough going for the person who picks out women who are "over 40," and it will be even worse for the men who pick out the best looking ones. The chances are the red ears of corn "and what goes with them," will be presented by huskers to their wives.

3,500 JAM COLISEUM FOR POLICE BALL, 'BIGGEST DANCE OF YEAR'

If Mansfield police were a little off their stride today, it wasn't because they were footsore from pounding their beats yesterday and last night.

All but a few members of the department took the "night off" and danced at the fourth annual policemen's ball at the Coliseum last evening. A crowd estimated at 3,500 jammed the hall for the event.

"Greatest event of the year," police and other dancers agreed after the closing number had been played. Nearly 5,000 tickets were sold by the officers.

The dance opened with the grand march led by Police Chief Meade K. Bates in his gold braided uniform and Mrs. Bates in formal attire. They were followed by other officers according to their departmental rankings, with their wives in evening dress

Dancing continued throughout the evening with Clyde Trask and his WLW orchestra furnishing the music. An accordian band from the Eugene Smart Studios entertained the audience prior to the grand march.

A floor show was presented during the intermission. Motion pictures of the dancers taken during the evening will be shown at a Mansfield theatetr within the next two weeks.

"Because Mansfield responded so generously to the event which was sponsored by the Police Recreation club, new equipment for the identification bureau can be purchased, with the public benefiting," Chief Bates said today.

SOVIET BREACH WITH TOKYO AND ROME FORESEEN

Foreign Policies of Many Nations Affected by New Tri-Power Agreement.

LONDON—(AP)— The underlying significance of the new "world triangle" against communism heightened national rivalries today all around an already war-ridden world.

The week-end conclusion of the superficially simple accord whereby Fascist Italy joined her diplomatic ally, Germany, and militarist Japan for joint action on "necessary defense measures" against international communism, brought an ominous series of repercussions.

Perhaps chief among these was the possibility the Soviet Union would break diplomatic relations with both Tokyo and Rome.

Reactions World Wide.

The reactions were world wide and the new anti-comintern front quickly became an important factor in the foreign policies of countless nations.

In Brussels diplomats of the United States, Britain and France were expected to take advantage of tomorrow's resumption of the far eastern peace conference to discuss implications of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo "triangle."

Reichschancellor Hitler, speaking last night in Munich in celebration of the anniversary of the Nazis' "beer cellar putsch," proclaimed the power of the "great world political triangle."

"It is not built on three weak structures but of three states which are ready and determined to take care of their rights and their interests," Hitler said.

France apparently was planning to answer the new front by striving to bring her two closest allies, Russia and Britain, into closer harmony and to strengthen her ties with the Little Entente (Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania) and Poland to combat Italian-German activity in that sphere.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, planning to fly to Brussels today, was expected to have long discussions in the next three days with Norman H. Davis, the United States' chief delegate to the Brussels conference, and with French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

An Idea Makes Headway.

NOW THAT THEY have had time to consider what happened at Chicago the Republican leaders who, all swollen with indignation at the effort to make them act instead of drift, rushed out there to "gang up" on the Hoover plan to hold a party convention next year, must feel a little foolish. At least, those among them with the cerebral capacity to grasp what really did happen feel hat way. The others just look foolish.

BECAUSE, from a detached point of view, it certainly seems that three-fourths of what Mr. Hoover urged was done. The fourth step which, with much breast beating and bellowing, they dramatically declined to take, becomes inevitable, whether they call it a conference, a convocation, an assemblage or a convention. The name makes little difference, the fact makes a lot, and unless some such gathering is ultimately held, then the steps to which all the leaders committed themselves are just silly. It is true the loud shouting about "licking Hoover," based upon their refusal to call a 1938 convention, obscured the fact that they had gone all the rest of the distance along the path suggested by Mr. Hoover. But that's the truth of it just the same.

THE FACTS SPEAK for themselves. Back of the Hoover suggestion the basic thought was to equip the Republican party, the only vehicle through which opposition can be effective, with a set of sound and understandable principles, of which it is now completely destitute and which anti-New Deal Democrats as well as Republicans could accept. To this end he urged a meeting of the national committee, at which steps should be taken to name a policy committee which would formulate a declaration to be submitted to a party convention next year.

THAT WAS THE PLAN. It happened to be the first Republican idea hatched in a year; the first evidence of intellectual life within the party since its 936 defeat. At once a favorable sentiment developed among the rank and file Republicans, who felt the time had come to find out what their party stands for, if anything, and that its utter inertia was contributing toward keeping the New Deal from crumbling and might easily become chronic. The opposition came from two elements. First, there were the Republican members of congress who must run for re-election next year and are anxious to avoid the indorsement of any principles, however sound, which will prevent them from promoting their own chances with organized voting groups to whom the Santa Claus policies of the New Deal particularly appeal

THE OTHER antagonistic element is composed of party leaders who, for one reason or another—mostly personal—are so anti-Hoover that they react against anything that gentleman suggests, if only because he suggests it. This is largely due to a personal dislike, which is undoubtedly mutual. In same it is sheer malice; in others a combination of an inferiority complex with small jealousy. In all is the fear that somehow or other Mr. Hoover may forge to the front, and the feeling that at all costs he must be prevented from again becoming the party's candidate. Though not one will believe it, on that proposition Mr. Hoover sees eye to eye with them. In that he will co-operate. No man knows better than he that there is no possibility of his nomination, and no one is clearer than he that if there were it would be a mistake to name him—a mistake from the standpoint of the cause, and a mistake from the standpoint of himself.

YET, SUCH IS THE obsession fo the anti-Hoover politicians that at Chicago they began seriously to believe that the Hoover suggestions were part of a deep, dark conspiracy, heavily organized and richly financed, to build Mr. Hoover up so that he can run in 1940. It is a childish idea and it would make Mr. Hoover out more or less of a political fool, which he is not. None the less, it had considerable to do with preventing the committee from adopting the plan in its entirety. That, under the circumstances, so much of it was agreed to is a tribute to its soundness. Of course, none of it will mean anything if the program committee of one hundred or more, soon to be announced, is composed of small-bore politicians. It is rather refreshing to hear from Mr. Hamilton that there will be no members of the national committee and no members of congress on it.

INCIDENTALLL, not the least amusing thing in connection with this effort to re-equip the Republican party with principles was the unsolicited advice to the party from Senator Borah — Senator Borah, who did not support the Republican ticket last year, who, in the last week of his campaign, affrightedly swallowed whole the Townsend old-age pension plan, and in the last session vehemently assured the senate that there was not the slightest reason for believing that Mr. Hugo Black ever hand been a Ku Klux Klansman. With a record such as this, for Mr. Borah to pose now as a Republican leader and project himself into a debate on the question of party principles argues an almost incredible lack of certain qualities, one of which is a sense of humor.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—A new Garbo picture is always an event, and "Conquest" is due to be more limelighted than other of her films. For one thing, it rates with the screen's greatest historical spectacles. For another, it is the first Garbo film within memory in which the Swedish star's role does not dominate. For a large portion of the footage, Garbo plays a sensitive and adoring second fiddle to Charles Boyer's Napoleon.

Director Clarence Brown, here considering the love story of the Polish Marie Walewska and the little great man of Europe, has set it against a brilliant and almost overwhelming background of the era. It is his triumph as a director that he has managed to keep the love story shining clear before the sweep and surge of armies and political intrigue.

Boyer's Napoleon is a masterly performance, his best in any film. Aided by plastic make-up, he achieves a remarkable resemblance to the character, but his great accomplishment is in humanizing a legend and portraying the emperor's progress from idealist to power-hungry dictator. Against such a role so ably played, it is a credit to Garbo that her patented brand of movie magic is never entirely lost to view and frequently shines brilliantly.

Eddie Cantor's "anniversary picture"—he's been in the public eye 25 years now—is "Ali Baba Goes to Town." Directed by David Butler, it takes up the case of a movie extra (Cantor) who in a dream goes to ancient Bagdad and inaugurates a New Deal, Roosevelt style.

Never quite as funny as you hope it will be, "Ali Baba" still has its quota of laughs, with good musical sequences—especially the "Swing Is Here to Sway" number which is aided by the hefty Peters sisters—and a huge and colorful production.

Tygers At Work

Murphy Mapping Defense to Halt Kenmore's Brilliant Ball Toter.

MANSFIELD high's once-beaten band of grid warriors, with a week's rest behind them, were hard at work today as they prepared for the invasion of the touted Akron Kenmore pigskin aggregation at Stadium field Saturday.

With every member of the squad in excellent shape, Coach J. Russell Murphy was busy mapping a defense which he hoped would halt Lloyd Miller, Kenmore's brilliant ball toter. Miller is the spearhead of the Akron offense machine.

Mansfield, victorious in its last appearance two weeks ago against the Western Reserve Freshmen, was not taking the Akron tilt lightly. It was placing considerable attention to brushing up the pass defense and running attack.

With Johnny Hallibrin, Tygers' sparkplug, entirely recovered from an ankle injury suffered a couple of weeks ago, the Mansfield club's power attack should be in top form for the game.

GALION CAN WIN TITLE AT SHELBY

An opportunity to win its first North Central Ohio conference championship since 1927 will be offered Galion high's grid machine Saturday when it invades Shelby for a circuit tussle with the Whippets at Skiles field.

The Orangemen, undefeated and untied in league play, cinched at least a tie for the title last week by edging the Marion Presidents, 7 to 0, at Galion.

A defeat at the hands of the Whippets would leave Galion and Mt. Vernon deadlocked for the crown, providing the Yellow Jackets dispose of Marion Friday night. The Jackets' only setback was administered by Galion.

In the other N. C. O. tilt, Bucyrus' Redmen travel to Ashland for a battle with the Orange and Black griders.

Lem Stecklin, the bearded giant from the Smoky mountains of Tennessee, and Walter Achine. Chinese expert, have been signed today by Tim Nolan, matchmaker, for one of the main events on the Quality club's weekly wrestling card at the Armory Thursday night.

With the completion of one main go, Nolan also announced that he had secured Bud Steel, Plymouth, O., youngster, and Leo Wheeler, Cleveland artist, to open the show with a 20-minute lightheavyweight affair.

The Stecklin-Achine match is another of the elimination tournament bouts which the club will stage through the fall and winter. Each wrestler will contribute to a special purse which will go to the winner of the finals. The winner will also be awarded a crack at the world's lightheavyweight crown.

Stecklin will have a second in his corner during his bout. The added member is his pet coon, Oscar, who accompanies the mountain man on all his appearances. The Tennessean will face a tough opponent in Achine, former Dayton university football star

FIRST FIGHTING IRISH GRID TEAM HAD 11 UNIFORMS, NO COACH

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of three articles dealing with the development of football at Notre Dame since 1887.

By TOBY WIANT
Copyright, 1937, The AP Feature Service

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Fifty years ago the University of Notre Dame, then 45 years old, started what was to become one of the most amazing and colorful chapters in the annals of football.

From November 7, 1887, up to the current season, Notre Dame grid machines won 286 games, lost only 63 and tied 21.

Rugged Irish elevens captured national championships in 1924, 1929 and 1930. They were named Western champions in 1919, 1920 and 1921.

Primarily responsible for all this was Knute Kenneth Rockne, who did more than any other man to build Notre Dame athletic prestige and traditions.

Rockne's scintillating coaching career ended tragically March 31, 1931, when he was killed in a Kansas airplane crash. But his influence on Notre Dame football in particular and on the nation's great sport in general will never die.

Started at the Top.

Notre Dame's first attempts to play football, back in 1887, were daring. The Irish picked as their first opponent the University of Michigan, then champion of the west.

A far-visioned religious man, Brother Paul, member of the Congregation of Holy Cross, which founded and still maintains Notre Dame, had urged the boys of Brownson hall to try the new game of football.

IN 1913
Notre Dame won seven games, lost none, under the captaincy of Knute Rockne of Chicago, who was more interested in classwork than in athletics.

At that time there were less than 200 in school; now the enrollment is more than 3,000. Then the gridiron was a vacant field; now Notre Dame has a $750,000 stadium that seats approximately 56,000.

That first Irish eleven was nothing more than an "eleven." There were only eleven suits in school, which meant only eleven men could play. Modern Notre Dame squads have included more than 200 players, with suits galore.

That first team had no coach. Notre Dame's first grid mentor was J. L. Morrison who directed the team in 1894-95.

* * *

Just before the initial contest, the Michigan team had to show the ignorant Irish the fine points of the game. The Notre Dame men knew the game only by hearsay. Michigan won, 8-0.

The Irish played no more in 1887, but received another baptism of fire the following year, when Michigan thumped them 26-6 and 10-4 on consecutive days.

The 1889 team trounced Northwestern 9-0, in the only contest the Irish played that season. Thus the '89 team became the first undefeated Notre Dame aggregation. Since then 13 Irish elevens have been undefeated.

Rockne Arrives.

Rockne, Gus Dorais, now University of Detroit coach, and Ray Eichenlaub, now a Columbus (O.) insurance man, came to Notre Dame as students in 1911 to start a new era in Irish football.

Rockne played end on the 1911, 1912 and 1913 teams, which won 20 games, lost none and tied two. Schools defeated included Pittsburgh, Marquette, Texas, Penn State and Army.

Prior to the Army game in 1913 Rockne and Dorais worked as waiters in a Cedar Point (O.) summer resort, practicing passplays on the beach in their spare time. They brought about Notre Dame's crushing of Army, 35-13, that fall. Their performance gave impetus to forward passing and an open game of football all over the U. S.

Rockne came to Notre Dame by accident.

He was born at Voss, Norway, March 4, 1888, shortly after Notre Dame played the first football game with Michigan, and as a boy, sailed with his parents, Louis and Martha Rockne, for America.

After he finished grade school in Chicago, his father's finances were insufficient to sponsor further education.

Gets a Loan.

In September, 1910, he met two companions on a Chicago street. They old him about Notre Dame, and he became interested. He decided to enter the school, but had to borrow $45 to make the start.

Rockne's foremost activity at Notre Dame was scholorship, but he found time for athletics. He starred in track as well as in football.

In 1914 Rockne taught chemistry and was assistant football and track coach. When Jesse C. Harper resigned in 1918, Rockne became head football coach.

IN 1893 NOTRE DAME WAS UNDEFEATED
The team won four games, lost none in the year when Brother Paul, founder of Notre Dame football, died. Left to right, back row: Dinkle, Flannigan, Chidester, Roby, Cullen. Center row: Sinnot, Kirby, Schillo, Hesse. Front row: Captain Keough, Zeitler, DuBrul.

STILL TOPS IN TENNIS

LONDON — (U.P.) — Dorothy Round, all-England champion, retained her No. 1 ranking and Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, for years England's second ranking male star, moved up to the top position, in the annual tennis rankins issued today by the British Lawn Tennis association.

Metzger Tops Ohio College Grid Scorers

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Charley Metzger, Miami's sterling senior fullback, topped Ohio's collegiate football scorers today with 54 points, soaring to the peak from second place Saturday as he counted a pair of touchdowns against Ohio Wesleyan while the other top-notchers displayed little activity.

Metzger's 12-point splurge against the Bishops lifted him above second-place Bob Bloom of Hiramy by a full touchdown, the Terrier star being blanked by Otterbein after scoring two touchdowns in each of four straight contests.

Johnny Lucas of Western Reserve slipped into a third-place tie at 36 points with Ralph Patton of Muskingum and Marty Slovak of Toledo, both of whom failed to count Saturday as Lucas scored his team's lone marker in the Syracuse catastrophe.

Hennemiller of Baldwin-Wallace had the sixth spot all alone with 32 points as the result of his touchdown against Case, which tossed the scientists out of the Ohio conference race. On his heels, with 30 points each, were Padley of Dayton, Schweitzer of Case and Zazula of Akron, the latter scoring a pair of touchdowns against Davis & Elkins to land among the top flighters.

Of the 272 players who have scored at least one point, only 22 have counted 24 or more points. Barring a "field day" by someone, the individual race appears to be a two man affair between Metzger and Bloom, the latter being a touchdown behind the Redskin ace and two ahead of the rest of the field.

Yelma of Akron took control of the point-after-touchdown column as he booted three Saturday to hike his total to 13, two more than Kelly of Dayton, who kicked one as the flyers dropped out of the unbeaten list against Toledo.

RAMS ATTEMPT TO KEEP RECORD INTACT

Face Bellville as They Try to Remain in Select Group of Unbeaten, Untied High School Clubs.

THE powerful Rams of Madison will attempt to remain in the select group of unbeaten and untied Ohio high school grid combines Friday night under the arcs at Madison stadium when then clash with the surprising Bellville club in the headline attraction on the Mid-State league program.

Coach Al Fendrick's proteges will undoubtedly face one of their toughest battles of the season. Bellville, one of the lightest teams in the league, has dropped only one tilt so far this season, and will be gunning for the Rams.

Madison will not only be trying to keep its slate clean, but will also be defending its Mid-State league championship.

Bellville is expected to test the Rams' tight defense which in four circuit games has allowed only one touchdown. Butler turned the trick in the opening minutes of the game at Butler several weeks ago.

Coach Royd Hodges' club bowed to the heavy Mt. Gilead combine, but has regained its stride and trounced the Danville Blue Devils, 31 to 7, last week. Madison defeated Danville, 18 to 0, in its opening loop game.

In the other league games on tap this week, Loudonville brings its season to a close when it journeys to Mt. Gilead for a tussle with the unbeaten Indians, while Fredericktown, who have yet to register a league victory, invades Danville, in a game that will close the season for both clubs.

Increase League Lead

The Barnes and Schmidt team increased its lead in the Commercial C bowling league last night at the Meder alleys when it defeated the Rogers Jewelers, 2488 to 2113. The three-game sweep enabled the Barnes club to add three games to its lead as the third-place Walter Barbers handed the runner-up Tappan Stoves a three-game defeat, 2409 to 2166. Turner won high individual honors with a 601.

BIG TEN WITHOUT CONTENDER

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—The Big Ten hasn't a really outstanding football team this season for the first time in years. Minnesota, Indiana and Ohio State apparently are the best teams in the conference, and each of them has been beaten twice.

You have to go back a long way to find a season when the Big Ten didn't have a contender for the national title. Minnesota was up around the top for four years. Before that it was Michigan and before the Wolverines it was Illinois. Even Notre Dame has joined in the general slump.

Most of the teams have vital weaknesses but several of them could go to town if they just had a couple of more players in the right spots. Minnesota showed flashes of greatness against Iowa and Michigan, but weaknesses cropped out when the Gophers faced tough opposition in Nebraska, Indiana and Notre Dame, teams more nearly their strength.

Gophers Lack Scoring Punch.

Minnesota has outgained the opposition more than three to one, but lacked scoring punch. If the Gophers had a field general and spark plug like Babe Le Voir of the 1935 Gophers, a tough tackle like Ed Widseth of the 1936 team and a speedy runner like Andy Uram, who is out of action for the season with a broken wrist, they might now be one of the leading challengers for the national crown.

Notre Dame's main need is for a triple threat left halfback along the lines of Marchy Schwartz, all-American in 1931. Jack McCarthy is doing a good job in that spot but he hasn't the speed to break up a game. He has to scratch for every yard he gets. Most of the Irish backs are short and stumpy, another reason Notre Dame hasn't won more games despite a fine line.

Things Needed.

Among the things most needed by the other Big Ten teams appear to be these:

Indiana—More manpower. Bo McMillin has only 15 or 16 good men and has to scrimmage against the freshmen because of lack of players. With capable reserves the Hoosiers might have beaten both Minnesota and Nebraska.

Ohio State—A pair of offensive ends and a climax runner. Bucks have good defensive ends, but little value on offense except as blockers. Coach Francis Schmidt's system calls for a fast halfback who can run in the open, something he hasn't had this season.

Illinois—An elusive halfback who can elude the secondary. If the Illini had a back like Don Heap of Northwestern they'd be challengers for the Big Ten title.

Northwestern — Reserves and more experience in the middle of the line. Great backs but running attack hasn't been able to function because of weak line play.

Wisconsin—Two tough tackles, a pair of good guards and more experience.

Purdue—Backs who can break up an aerial attack and a couple of first class guards.

Michigan—Bigger and taller backs, and better tackling in the line.

Iowa—Two more years for Coach Irl Tubbs to install his system and rekindle the Hawkeyes' spirit.

Chicago—Another Jay Berwanger and ten blockers to go with him.

Panther-Nebraska Tilt Tops Program

Battle at Pittsburgh Important From National Standpoint Since Both Are Unbeaten—Army-Notre Dame Clash at New York.

By HENRY SUPER

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—East-west competition—topped by the Army-Notre Dame and Pittsburgh-Nebraska games—features the coming week-end of gridiron hostilities.

The battle between the Cornhuskers and Panthers at Pittsburgh, the 12th of a series, is the most important from a national standpoin since neither have been beaten. Pittsburgh's record is sullied only by a scoreless tie with Fordham, while Nebraska has been held even by Oklahoma and Kansas. The Panthers are favored.

The Soldiers and the Irish come to New York for their 24th annual meeting. A crowd of 80,000 is expected at Yankee stadium. Notre Dame is rated the stronger.

Michigan Meets Penn.

Other intersectional games in the east pair Michigan-Pennsylvania, Davidson-Harvard, North Carolina State-Manhattan, Kentucky-Boston college, Maryland-Penn State, and Ohio U.-Rutgers.

Four of the five surviving undefeated and untied teams see action. Lafayette meets Washington and Jefferson. Colorado plays Colorado college, Santa Clara meets St. Mary's on Sunday in the Pacific Coast's "little big game" and Alabama clashes with Georgia Tech. Montana is idle.

Fordham Idle.

All the undefeated but tied teams except Fordham play this week-end. California, held to a scoreless deadlock last week by Washington, meets Oregon. Other games, with unbeaten but tied teams listed first, are: Yale-Princeton; Dartmouth-Cornell; Villanova-Boston U. on Thursday; Holy Cross-Brown, and Duke-North Carolina.

East—N. Y. U.-Georgetown; Columbia-Syracuse, and Temple-Bucknell.

Mid-west—Four Big Ten conference games scheduled—Illinois-Ohio State, Indiana-Iowa, Northwestern-Minnesota and Purdue-Wisconsin. Outside games are: Iowa State-Marquette, Chicago-Beloit, Michigan State-Carnegie Tech and Detroit-North Dakota.

South—Alabama, leading the Southeastern conference, meets Georgia Tech in the top game of the division. Other conference pairings: Auburn-L. S. U., Georgia-Tulane, Mississippi State-Sewanee and Tennessee-Vanderbilt.

Top Southern Conference.

The big game in the Southern conference pairs Duke, the leader and defending champion, with North Carolina, which is second.

Southwest—Three games on the conference program—Baylor-S. M. U., Texas Christian-Texas and Texas A. and M.-Rice. Rice, surprise team of the conference, leads the division with two victories and no defeats, displacing Baylor which was dropped to second when it was defeated by Texas Saturday.

Pacific Coast—California, leading the division with four victories and a tie, encounters rugged Oregon. Second place Stanford meets Washington State. Other conference games are Washington-U. C. L. A. and Oregon State-Southern California.

Rocky Mountain — Colorado, leading the division with five victories and no defeats, meets weak Colorado college.

ENTER FIELD TRIALS

Dogs From All Sections Set for Miami Event.

WILMINGTON, O.—(AP)—Dogs from all parts of the United States and some from Canada have been entered in the 15th annual fall field trials of the Miami Valley Field Trial association for pointer and setter dogs which will be held on the Collett farm, seven miles west of here, Friday and Saturday.

Running of the stake for the Dayton trophy, which is valued at $1,000, will be held Friday and Saturday's events consist of the derby and the amateur of all ages.

Y to Organize Amateur Wrestling Team.

The Mansfield amateur wrestling club will hold a meeting at the Y. M. C. A., it was announced by Don Cram today. The club will attempt to organize a team to appear in shows in this vicinity. Vern Heiser, former captain of Ohio State's wrestling team, has been secured to coach the youthful grunters. It is important that all Y boys interested in joining the club to appear at the meeting, Cram said.

PITT TOPS GRID POLL

By ALAN GOULD

NEW YORK—(AP)—Pittsburgh's football powerhouse, triumphant in the Rose Bowl last New Year's day and seemingly ambitious to try it again, displaced the University of California today as the nation's No. 1 team.

The combination of Pitt's emphatic victory over Notre Dame and California's scoreless tie with Washington helped bring about the biggest shakeup so far in the national gridiron ranking poll conducted by the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh collected a majority of the first-place ballots, 31½ out of 55, and piled up a decisive margin on points while California dropped to second place after leading the procession for three weeks. Alabama received more first-place votes than California in this week's balloting but was not supported strongly enough otherwise to avoid dropping a notch to third place.

The marked swing of football's balance of power to the northeast, with five teams from this section in the "first ten," is indicated by the following tabulation:

(First places bracketed; points scored 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1.)

First Ten.	Points.
1. Pittsburgh (31½)	509½
2. California (9)	449
3. Alabama (13)	422
4. Fordham (1½)	386½
5. Dartmouth	253
6. Yale	215
7. Santa Clara	166
8. Duke	159
9. Villanova	62
10. Minnesota	61

Second ten: 11. Nebraska, 55; 12. Louisiana State, 52; 13. Baylor, 43; 14. Auburn, 30; 15. Rice, 29; 16. Colorado university, 23; 17. Indiana, 13; 18. Notre Dame, 12; 19. Holy Cross, 7; 20. Arkansas, 6.

NEW ATTENDANCE HIGH

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Henry Taylor, ticket sale director at Ohio State university, predicted today that the 1937 football season would show a total of more than 400,000 attendance at all Buck games, compared to the 391,371 record set in 1936. He said the six-game attendance to date this year was 297,762, with Illinois and Michigan games ahead.

Illinois to Test Buck Defense

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Since Francis A. Schmidt, the doleful Texan, took over the head coaching job at Ohio State in the fall of 1934 the Bucks have compiled the best offensive record of any Western conference eleven.

Under Schmidt, the Bucks have played 20 Big Ten games and amassed a total of 470 points in them. To compile that impressive aggregate the Scarlet and Gray gridders have had a "field day" at least once against each conference opponent they have met in the past four seasons with the exception of Illinois.

Canny Bob Zuppke, who brings his Illinois team here Saturday, has proved a defensive master able to meet Ohio's attack better than any other Western conference coach.

In three meetings with Ohio State during the Schmidt regime, Illinois has granted the Bucks a total of but 32 points.

Against other Big Ten foes the Ohio State offensive record under Schmidt is:

Chicago, 138 points in four games: Michigan, 103 points in three games; Northwestern, 76 points in four games; Indiana, 68 points in four games; Iowa, 40 points in one game; and Purdue, 13 points in one game.

Ohio State can expect plenty of trouble again this season from the defense that Zuppke will use here this week-end.

Illinois hasn't demonstrated much of a scoring punch thus far, but its defense has been exceptionally strong. The boys from Champaign held Notre Dame scoreless and have granted only 20 points in three Big Ten games. Thirteen of the points scored against Illinois were by the hard-driving Indiana team that blasted Ohio State last week. The other touchdown and point conversion was made by Michigan.

Ohio State was worked lightly yesterday. A hard rain forced the squad to forego outside practice and the drill was held under the stadium.

FREEDOM SHORT

Trusty Captured In Ashland 8 Hours After His Escape.

A trusty who escaped from the Mansfield reformatory farm dormitory under the cover of dusk Saturday was back at the institution today after eight hours of freedom.

The inmate, Herbert Cheapman, 20, was captured in Ashland by Sheriff H. F. Wallet of Ashland county, after a motorist reported to the sheriff that he had picked up a hitchhiker dressed in prison garb, and then ordered him out of the car when he discovered he was a O. S. R. inmate.

Cheapman had been in the reformatory since April 9, was sent here from Cuyahoga county to serve one to three years for uttering a check with intent to defraud.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said that additional time would be imposed on Cheapman's sentence as penalty for his escape.

STOCKS SHOW MODEST RALLY AT OPENING

Lists Rise Fractions to One Point, But Tumble In Second Hour.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stoks generally exhibited, modest rallying signs in today's market.

The list pushed up fractions to a point or so at a lively opening, but extreme advanes were lowered appreciably near the second hour. Dealings also quieted

Announcement the treasury was shipping gold to Europe for the first time in 2 years exemplified the recent shift of foreign balances from America. The British pound and French franc, for a change, were lower in terms of the dollar.

Drying up of stock selling, brokers said, was due partly to the fact congress will convene in special session next week and there is the possibility Washington may pull a "rabbit" out of the hat that will revive the market.

Bonds and commodities were inclined to edge forward.

Bolstering the rails was action of the interstate commerce commission in setting up a special three-way committee to speed up hearings on the carriers' petition for a flat 15 per cent freight rate increase. It was thought this step would make a decision probable within 90 days or less. Ordinarily an inquiry of this sort would require about six months.

Estimates of final quarter steel production were being revised downward in view of the sharp drop in this week's mill operations. Previous forecasts placed the final three months at around 50 per cent of capacity. Trade authorities now believe a figure between 40 and 45 per cent is likely.

HOLD JUSTICES REGARD BLACK AS QUALIFIED

Court Observers Point Out Actions at Session as Reasons For Belief.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The supreme court appeared today to regard its newest member, Hugo L. Black, a properly appointed and legally seated associate justice.

The court's attitude toward its four-time challenged member was believed to have been revealed in these series of events which marked the first opinion day of the 1937-38 term.

1. Black read the court's opinion, written by himself and concurred in by the other eight justices, in a case upholding authority of the federal trade commission to issue "cease and desist" orders where the FTC finds fraud.

2. With Justices Louis D. Brandeis, Harlan F. Stone and Benjamin N. Cardozo—the court's famed "liberal three"—Black dissented in a 5 to 4 decision involving classification of income for tax purposes.

Gets Assignment.

3. Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes announced assignment of Black to supervise the fifth judicial circuit in accordance with the custom of having each justice supervise at least one circuit.

4. The court rejected the third attack on Black's constitutional eligibility, brought by a group of Florida securities brokers seeking a reconsideration of an earlier refusal to review the constitutionality of the 1933 securities act.

The fourth challenge to Black's eligibility was filed by Elizabeth L. Seymour, of Salamanac, N. Y., and Robert Gray Taylor, of Media, Pa., acting as private citizens. Taylor said he was chairman of the Philadelphia court plan committee.

Their petition, noting that neither filer was a member of the bar, requested permission to "file a brief containing certain allegations affecting the legality of the oath taken by Hugo L. Black, a sitting associate justice of the supreme court of the United States."

During the "decision session" final written decisions were rendered in more than a dozen relatively unimportant cases.

An interesting decision was a 6-to-3 ruling upholding the right of Iowa tax officials to impose income taxes on interest from so-called "tax exempt" bonds issued by political subdivisions of the state. The majority opinion held that the exemption applied only to "ad valorem," or property taxes.

Some observers believed the decision might open the way to taxation of many so-called "tax exempt" securities.

ECHO OF STRIKE

Convicted on a charge of assault growing out of an altercation on the picket line during the recent strike of coal drivers, Frank M. Glasgow, proprietor of the Direct Coal company, 190 West Sixth street, was fined $1 and costs in municipal court today.

Charges against Glasgow were filed by Lorenzo A. Wade, 145 North Main street, a driver for the Kent Rummel Coal company.

Wade testified that Glasgow struck him in the back as he was leaving the latter's office. He said he fell to the ground and suffered back injuries. Glasgow told the court he had merely pushed Wade and denied that he had struck him.

BRUSSELS — (AP)—The afternoon session of the Brussels far eastern peace conference was postponed until tomorrow when officials announced today British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden would not reach Brussels in time for the scheduled meeting.

STUDY GUNS AS SLAYING CLUE

Experts Seek to Link Captured Gang to Conn Murder.

MILWAUKEE — (U.P.) — Guns used by four bandits in the murder of a policeman during a robbery here last week were studied by ballistics experts today to determine if the men also were involved in the slaying of Ohio State Highway Patrolman George Conn near Freeport, O.

Mike Kalamyer, 45, Fred Young, 47, Charles Carney, 59, and Patrick Connolly, 45, all of Chicago, were captured by Milwaukee police after a gun battle in which a gang member and Detective George Raabe were killed.

Weapons and ammunition taken from the men will be submitted to Prof. J. H. Matthews, University of Wisconsin expert, to be checked with bullets taken from Conn's body.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS DUE THIS WEEK

Signals to Be Installed at Junction of 30 and 42 In Short Time.

Equipment for the installation of traffic lights at the hazardous intersection of Routes 30 and 42, just east of the Park avenue east subway, is expected to be delivered to the city "sometime this week," Mayor Earl A. McFarland announced today.

The mayor said the four traffic signals, which will cost approximately $600 when installed, should be here this week. He explained that the manufacturing company did not have the special lights in stock and had to build them.

McFarland said that City Electrician Ernest Adams will begin work on the installation of the signals "just as soon as the equipment arrives."

Plans call for the installation of a light on each end of the subway, and two at the intersection of the two highways east of the subway. One light will regulate west-bound traffic on Route 42, another will regulate west-bound traffic on Route 30, and the other two will regulate east-bound traffic on both Routes 30 and 42.

Pranksters Blamed For Power Bomb Blast at Aimee's Temple

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Police blamed pranksters today for a powder explosion atop Aimee Semple McPherson's Angelus Temple which seriously maimed two Bible students and terrified 500 others last night.

A sheet of blue flame engulfed the temple dome. Windows were shattered in adjacent Foursquare Bible college. Broken glass cut several co-eds in a fourth floor room, and three fainted.

Detective Lieut. D. R. Patton placed responsibility for the "bomb scare" on four students working their way through Bible college.

Two of the quartet were seriously injured. Gordon Atwater, 16, of Albuquerque, N. M., suffered the amputation of his left hand and Edwin Bond, 16, was so burned he may lose his sight.

Found hiding in a trapdoor on the roof, Norman McGrew and Robert Blanchfield, each 20, were charged with feloniously setting off an explosion to frighten or intimidate an assembly. Similar charges will be filed against Bond and Atwater, Patton said.

Makeshift bombs had been made from flares used in the evangelist's religious tableaux, Patton said.

Atwater said he had one can of the pyrotechnic powder in his pocket and another in his hand when Bond lit a match.

L. L. Ligters, Chambersburg, Pa., told police that he lost control of the machine when it skidded on the wet car tracks.

A collision at East Third and Foster streets at 9:30 a. m. today wrecked two cars. Police said the drivers, Harold Myers, 125 South Main street of the DeLuxe Cab company and Alvin Herman, 190 East Fourth street, salesman for the Holsum Bakery, were uninjured.

SOCIAL WORKER GROUP ELECTS

Club Picks O. S. R. Official as President; Discusses Juvenile Problem.

Officers were elected, and a round table discussion held on juvenile delinquency last night when members of the Mansfield Social Workers club met at First Methodist Episcopal church.

A. T. Sneeringer, principal of schools at Ohio State Reformatory, was elected president to succeed J. Leo Hartmann, retiring. E. W. Kissell, principal of Newman school, will serve as vice president and Mis Helen Hurst, members of the Communitp Fund executive board, as secretary.

A round table discussion on juvenile delinquency and how to provide for the leisure time of boys between the ages of 14 and 21, took place, with Probate Judge C. J. Anderson, Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston, Ralph Chapman, Y. M. C. A. secretary, E. W. Kissell, and Harry Sotzen of Shelby, speaking. It was agreed that if boys had a meeting place with supervised recreation for all of their leisure hours, juvenile delinquency could be reduced considerably.

Speakers contended that combining eating places with liquor dispensories had not worked out satisfactorily in Ohio, as it gave minors an excuse for entering places where liquor is sold.

An entertainment feature was a take off on a fashion show which was staged by Mrs. William Huston, Mrs. Iva Bush, Mrs. Gus Flohr, Mrs. Charles Hostetter, Mr. Homer Spriggins, Mrs. William Rhoades, Mrs. Harry Charles, Mrs. Roy Zerby and Mrs. Fred Nixon.

INSULATED SOLES...
the newest improvement in shoes!
Because the thin soles of women's shoes offered but scant protection from blistering hot sidewalks in summer and cold damp pavements in winter, Dickerson developed a new sole filler called Insulwhyte. This is used, in place of the usual ground cork filler, between the outer sole and insole. Insulwhyte will not "bunch up" under the insole, it provides a natural cushion tread, and it resists the passage of heat, cold and moisture. Insulwhyte makes shoes more flexible, lighter and smarter. It is used only in Dickerson Verified footwear—which we feature.

TRIAL MARRIAGE HERE, HE SAYS

Los Angeles Doctor Points to Marriage, Divorce Rates For Past 10 Years.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—An eminent soiologist, Dr. Paul Popenoe, said today "trial marriage, long discussed as a theory, is actually here in practice."

Dr. Popenoe, director of the institute of family relations, based his statement on Los Angeles county marriage and divorce records.

He cited the fact 24,684 marriage licenses were issued and 12,650 divorce suits filed the past fiscal year. The ratio he said, has been about the same for 10 years.

"If every adult married, divorced and then remarried once," Dr. Popenoe asserted, "the ration of marriage licenses to divorce suits would be two to one.

"This is the ratio actually found here—but of course not every married person divorces and re-marries. Hence, a minority must re-marry a number of times, thus supplementing trial marriage by serial polygamy."

Reasons for the high divorce rate are complex, but childlessness, said Dr. Popenoe, is considered one very important factor.

The family relations institute has found the majority of divorced persons never re-marry.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1937.

The cost of living has a habit of going up in anticipation of increased earnings.

November might easily become a popular month by sticking to its best weather.

Now that liquor is being ruled out of the stadium there is nothing to prevent realization that the home team is losing.

Red Cross Roll of Honor.

LITTLE need be said, to those who read, regarding the work done by the Red Cross.

It may be doubted if any other one thing reflects the spirit of a community as unmistakably as the way in which its people respond to calls for money to carry on Red Cross activities.

It is a high compliment to Mansfield and Richland county that, for the past three years, this county has held first place among Ohio counties in per capita membership in the Red Cross.

This year, for the annual Roll Call starting Thursday, more than five hundred volunteer workers in Mansfield, Shelby and elsewhere in the county, will be engaged in the task of enrolling members for the new year.

These men and women contribute their time as well as money to furthering activities of the Red Cross. Others are asked only to renew memberships—at $1, $5, $10 and $25.

Last year's roll call passed the 8,000 mark for Richland county memberships.

It would be a glorious accomplishment this year if the county total could be sent up to the 10,000 figure!

America On the Spot.

ANTHONY EDEN, British foreign secretary, says that the Brussels peace conference is an American party, and so by implication washes his hands of responsibility for its success. He promises to go along, but wants America to lead.

It was, to be sure, started by American initiative. But our government has disavowed responsibility for the results, holding that it has done its duty in bringing the powers together, and from now on it is only one of 15 governments equally obligated to seek a peaceful solution.

This is the only position the United States could take without the risk of getting its fingers burned, and is obviously as far as our people want the government to go. John Bull, bedeviled as he is by the European situation, has neither power nor inclination just now to assume much responsibility in the Far East. It may also be true that, in spite of the diplomatic friendliness of the two countries, and the general importance of the British Empire and the United States sticking together, John wouldn't mind getting Uncle out on an oriental limb. If that happened, Japan would enjoy sawing off the limb, and Hitler and Mussolini would love to help.

All of which means that the American envoys at Brussels, while trying to perform a service to mankind, will have to watch their step.

Political Progress.

MAYOR LA GUARDIA, columnist Jay Franklin says, "has shown that it is entirely unnecessary for a reform mayor in America's biggest machine-dominated metropolis to build up a political machine with which to fight his opponents. He won because the mass of people believed in his honesty, ability and courage, and because they liked what he had accomplished in office.

"From now on," adds Franklin, "much of the existing political overhead of party organization must be junked. It is obsolete, expensive and unnecessary."

It seems so in this conspicuous case, and also in some other cases around the country. Thus in Cleveland, usually Democratic in national politics, but given to independent voting in local elections, a Republican with a record of efficient, nonpartisan service has just been re-elected by a great majority. Many examples may be found, showing that the voters are usually less partisan than the politicians, and are prompt to recognize and reward good public service.

Fashion vs. Taste.

MANY had suspected the fact, but are none the less surprised to read the statement of a fashion authority that taste no longer dictates styles in women's clothes. Fashion alone is the rule. Said the authority:

"The thing to do it not to worry about good taste in clothes and jewelry, but to give every consideration to fashion."

She admitted further that there is "much over-dramatization" in the styles of today and adds that "all the things formerly questioned are now in good taste."

This will encourage many women and girls to deck themselves out in the ultra-fashionable regardless of whether the lines, color, and trimming of a hat or gown are becoming to them. But though good taste is thrown out of the window, it probably won't be killed or lost forever. After a period of freakish and bizarre styles there is very likely to come one of greater simplicity and dignity. Good taste will again be in fashion.

New Light on Blond Charm.

YES, says Sir James Crichton-Browne, famous and venerable surgeon, in a new "Doctor's Note Book," gentlemen are really inclined to prefer blonds just as Anita Loos said. But why? The gentlemen, and also the ladies, inust prepare for a mild shock. Listen:

> "Exophthalmic goitre is undoubtedly more common in blonds than in brunettes, and it tends in its incipient stage to produce a type of woman who is clever, volatile, lively and temperamental, with large, lustrous eyes, distinctly attractive to the other sex."

It is probably in order for gentlemen with any gallantry or sentiment or poetry in their systems to rise up as one man and say they don't believe that blond charm is a disease.

According to Haile Selassie, he still rules Ethiopia—apparently one of the rules that works both ways.

The gambling fraternity thinks you're foolish to try to save something for a rainy day.

La Guardia's Presidential Chances Not Bright

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—America's leading politicians, assembled in Washington for the extra congressional session, are in practically unanimous agreement that Fiorello H. La Guardia's recent reelection as mayor of New York City made the "Little Flower" a national figure of the first magnitude.

It is not quite so generally agreed, however, that his victory marked him as a very outstanding presidential possibility.

Not that he isn't recognized as possessing many presidential qualities. As a representative of several terms' experience, he is well liked on Capitol Hill, even by lawmakers who are entirely out of sympathy with his governmental and economic philosophies. He is respected, too, for both his sincerity and ability.

Yet there are critics who point to certain handicaps the mayor would labor under, nationally speaking—handicaps which, they say, do not seriously embarrass him in the restricted field of New York City politics.

* * *

WHAT TICKET?

For one thing, these skeptics ask:

"Upon what ticket could the 'Little Flower' run, to get him into the White House."

In the main La Guardia has done his campaigning as a Republican. But he has campaigned also as a Socialist. As an independent likewise. And as a Fusionist. I have no doubt that he would be willing to do so as a Democrat. Labels signify nothing to him. Still, he never HAS run as an out-and-out Democrat.

That seems to foreclose a Democratic presidential nomination against him. Maybe it should not influence a Democratic nominating convention against him, but it is almost certain that it would.

Republicanism, broadly considered, is conservative, and La Guardia assuredly is to the leftward. That would bar him from a Republican nomination.

A liberal independent convention might name him as its standard bearer, but the time hasn't come when a third party ticket stands any chance of victory on election day. Consequently such a candidacy is not worth having.

* * *

HANDICAPS

La Guardia's first name (Fiorello) means, in Italian, "Little Flower."

But the mayor has taken all the sting out of that by recognizing what a ridiculous name it is for a politician—by saying, outspokenly, "where can anyone get, in politics, with a name like that?" He has counteracted that drawback by homeopathic treatment—by emphasizing it and taking his medicine.

His Italian paternity and his Jewish maternity are not so easy to offset.

It is lamentable that such should be the case, but his ancestry probably would be cited to his disadvantage, with a deal of effect among bigoted voters, as against Al Smith, in 1928.

It would be painful to have a similar contest.

* * *

UPSTATE VOTE?

La Guardia won by a landslide in New York City. But would he win by a proportionate majority for the governorship of New York state? Or would he win for the senate? It is problematic. Upstate New York is different from New York City.

And nationally?

To be sure, he is unlike most New Yorkers. The run-of-mine of them know nothing of the United States west of the Hudson river. The "Little Flower" was brought up in Arizona.

All that is in his favor.

* * *

KNOWS HIS OBJECTIVES

He differs from President Roosevelt in this:

"F. D." is "feeling his way" toward desired objectives.

La Guardia not only knows what his objective is; he knows how he hopes to get there.

* * *

DEWEY

There is considerable chat to the effect that Thomas E. Dewey's victory for the New York county district attorneyship hints at Dewey, rather than La Guardia, as the next Democratic candidate for the governorship of New York—and subsequently the Empire state's 1940 or 1944 Democratic presidential candidate.

Maybe so.

Possibly Dewey is a presidential candidate in the background.

At the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

WASHINGTON — One of the most solemn spots in America is the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Behind the scenes not all is solemn.

Many a soldier marching patiently up and down before that historic granite block has preserved his monastic calm while his feet tortured him unmercifully and flies and mosquitoes pestered him.

The job of keeping guard over that tomb is a sacred job in the army, but it is no Sunday school picnic.

Here is how it is done. Nine men and three non-commissioned officers, a sergeant and two corporals, take over the job for 15-day tricks. In a quiet, cathedral atmosphere they march hundreds of miles back and forth in those 15 days.

One man at a time marches over a 30-yard course. He marches two hours and is off four hours. That parading goes on from sunrise until Arlington cemetery closes at night.

During his two hours on guard the soldier may speak to no one. He avoids meeting the eyes of anyone. He learns to look right through people. He never smiles.

* * *

Girls Bother Guards.

THE annoying part of it is that spectators try to get the soldiers to smile.

"Girls are the worst," said one soldier who had finished one 15-day stint and was glad to be through with it.

"Girls," he said, "stand right beside the path and smile and try to catch your eye. The corporal is right over there watching you. Sometimes so is the officer of the day. If they catch a guy smiling they burn him up."

The watch is maintained on a 24-hour basis, but after the crowds leave the soldiers don't march back and forth. They sit around near the tomb and smoke.

For the first few years the soldiers marched along the bare granite. Then a rubber carpet was laid for them to walk on so it wouldn't be so hard on the feet.

The rubber helps some, our soldier said.

But two hours of pounding over the same short course makes a soldier's foot bones creak. He has to carry a gun on his shoulder. He can change the gun from one shoulder to another, but he can't carry it along in his hand, even for a rest.

* * *

Queen Catherine's Violet.

SUN on the granite tomb and the white marble amphitheatre creates a blinding glare and, especially in summer, the heat is terrific.

Soldiers can wear smoked glasses if they wish, but if they start the two-hour march wearing them, they can't take them off. In summer sweat covers the glasses and they are worse than useless. There is a hedge near one end of the path, however, and sometimes, when the corporal is not looking, a guard can snatch off his glasses quickly and toss them in the hedge.

How long the march will go on no one can guess. The legislation providing for it says "perpetually." It recalls a story of Queen Catherine of Russia. While walking in the garden of the palace she saw a violet blossoming through a fresh blanket of snow. She had a guard posted to protect it, then forgot about it. For years a guard was maintained over the spot—although the violet had long been gone and the reason for the guard forgotten.

The Unknown Soldier's tomb is not likely to be forgotten, however. The number of persons visiting it increases every year. It has been there since 1921.

As Others See It

It's Different Now.

Another explanation of things is that old-fashioned couples began with a cow and a cook stove, while moderns begin with a diamond ring and a coupe.—Newark Advocate.

Keeping Step

By LESLIE EICHEL

Republicans Now Control New York.

JAMES A. FARLEY will not become governor of New York. That seems to be one result of the recent election. The Farley-backed candidate for mayor of New York lost, as virtually all observers believed he would. That is not news. The victor happened to be a better New Dealer, even though he ran on a Republican ticket.

The real significance lies in the fact that the Republicans got a stranglehold on the New York legislature and the forthcoming constitutional convention.

Now that indicates if New York City Republicans will put up a La Guardia or a Dewey for governor, upstate will see that he is overwhelmingly elected. And you may trust the New York City Republicans to do that.

* * *

LEHMAN'S FAILURE

The downfall of Democracy in New York state may be attributed to the betrayal of the New Deal by Gov. Herbert Lehman. He has been edging over more and more to the discredited Al Smith Democrats, the banker Democrats, as opposed to the Roosevelt Democrats. He has looked with tolerant eye on the even more discredited Tammany Democrats.

And, in the meantime, the Republicans have been playing smart politics. They have been tying up with outright liberals, such as Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia in New York and young Thomas Dewey, the rackets prosecutor who now becomes district attorney of New York county. And, now, in New York City at least, the Republicans are more New Deal than the New Dealers!

President Roosevelt may rejoice in the situation, for all we know, as teaching his Democratic opponents a lesson. Without a Roosevelt, or his New Deal, the Democrats again would go into oblivion in the north.

* * *

MATTER OR EXPEDIENCY

The Republican party is not changing—at least, it believes it is not changing. It ties its wagon to a liberal star only in such regions where it can win power thereby. Elsewhere it remains as reactionary as in the recent past.

In Detroit, it put over its reactionary candidate for mayor through a coalition and a "fear" campaign against the C. I. O.

In Ohio industrial cities, except Cleveland, it stood solidly behind reactionaries.

In Cleveland, it hitched up to a mild liberal who may be able to recover the state government from the Democrats in the next election.

I just have heard a discussion in the lounge of an exclusive hotel—a discussion between two business men who feared the Republicans may be going too far in their efforts to grasp national victory. Too far—that is—if they nominate "a radical like La Guardia." That may be true.

* * *

A POSSIBILITY

There is a possibility that a La Guardia or a northwestern liberal may sweep into power via the Republican party. And not only would the New Deal continue unabated, but the Republican party would be taken over by even more New Dealers than follow President Roosevelt. And the Democratic party would become the haven of the conservatives—losing all the elections and leaving the conservatives worse off than they are now.

Wouldn't that be a pickle to get into!

Maintaining Bus Schedules.

Editor News-Journal:

I have watched the traffic situation in Mansfield in recent years, with a great deal of interest.

One of the most distressing instances of our motorized discourtesy, is the utter contempt in which our scheduled bus service is held. I have seen any number of cases where indiscreet motorists have parked inside bus terminal zones, thereby necessitating a delay in which all traffic is held up until the bus can be properly parked.

The thoughtless cutting in on busses at intersections, and double parking on our main thoroughfares is not only a menace to the public at large, but a serious handicap to maintenance of an efficient bus service. These operators have an exact time schedule and it seems that a little courtesy on the part of the average motorist should be extended, in order to heighten the value of this public conveyance.

Mountain Autumn.

NOW, wherever one looks, there is rough gold.

In the thick, dried grass, tawny as the pelt of some wild animal—

In the great trunks of the pines, rising rank upon rank, straight and still, in the long-aisled dimness of the woods—

In the ruddy foliage of the oaks, where the leaves spread, dully gleaming, like thin, beaten plates of copper—

In the forest floor, coral pink with the fallen pine needles, hushed and resilient to the step, from the springy carpet of needles—

In the light itself, lying low and bright in the bowl of the meadow, spreading thick and deep as an amber syrup—

Everywhere there is gold—
Mingled and mellowed gold.

As though all the abundance of the year . . . its perfume and potency, fat seeds, rich juices and pungent gums . . . the hot ardor of its fertile earth . . . its brilliant tides of flowers jeweled with petals . . . even the moving madness of its moonlit nights . . . as if all its fervency and beauty and magic had been mingled and melted into this golden glaze.

Even the sounds come mellow and golden—

The lazy lowing of the cows grazing in the distance . . . moving slowly homeward through the dusk, their bells clattering, their udders hanging heavy with milk—

The sudden, bubbling gobble of the turkey hunting grasshoppers in the clearing . . . their sleek bodies weaving like bronze bobbins through the yellowing warp of the grasses—

The whispering chuckle and tinkle of the little brook, rippling under the arching ferns, gleaming over the bending reeds—

The faint sigh and crackle of the camp fire, burning fitfully in the open . . . its smoke mounting in a blue, unwavering line, up through the gloom of the forest, past the massed thunder of the pines, into the vast, pale arch of the sky—

Even the sounds are golden.

Even the fragrance—

All through the year it has been gathering . . . that fragrance . . . all through the rainless months. Layer upon layer, as the spring flowers faded and fell, as the soft pollen clustered and scattered, that fragrance has gathered, has drifted down to the dark, ashy earth.

Now it lies mingled. Fragrance of field land and tang of the forest and odorous musk of the vineyard . . . now it lies waiting. Now, with the rain, it will give off its perfume . . . fill the gray air with the spice of its incense . . .

Sight, sound and scent—all golden. Forest and clearing, mountain and meadow, sunken sleeping beneath a gold glaze.

Now, at the end, this warm, golden silence.

Where one the fields were busy with the shouts of the workers and dark with the struggle of the plow—now it is still. Now the heat and the hurry, the sweat and the fury are forgotten . . . are melted and mingled in this golden ending of the year.

As for me, also, the year nears its end. For me, too, the heat has lost its sting . . . and the hurt its poison . . . and the hurry its pressure. Now all that has passed is mingled in me at it is in the earth . . . and I, too, rest and wait—

And the last light spreads in an amber pool across the meadow—

And the mountains darken from blue to violet, from violet to wine—

And in the east . . . where another day will start . . .

There glows a quiet star.

Forever and Ever

—By HELEN LOOMIS LINHAM

I am so tired of the rumors of war
That over all nations spill and pour;
The cry of war, the news of it,
Like a cyclone cloud with its lightning lit.

Should we cuddle, and nurse, and love our sons,
Just to be targets for angry guns?
And cherish each smile and dimple deep,
Then rush them to war and never weep?

What matter of wrong could make men plan
And want to stifle the breath of man?
What ever sin could make men say,
It's war we need to prove our way"?

To spill men's blood beneath the blue!
Who plans these wars, yes, who are you?
Have you forgotten the word of God,
To want to rip up man and sod?

Oh, tear away this veil of grief,
This thing called WAR! And bring relief!
Let mothers hold their babies tight
Without one thought of hate and strife.

Oh, let them vision the tomorrow
Without one thought of all this sorrow;
Have you a son you want to give?
No! Neither have we! Oh, let us live
Forever and ever in Holy Peace.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

IT WOULD not likely happen in any other city. That is the combination of barriers that have kept Bill Corum, the sports writer, and I from knowing each other, save through an occasional hail that we exchange through our newspaper columns.

We live across a few roof tops from one another—he in a hotel and I in an apartment house—in New York's mid town. We came from Missouri whistle stops only a few hours apart and in the recent merger of two metropolitan newspapers found ourselves articled to the same journal.

At least a dozen of his close friends are friends of mine—several times I have missed him by an eyelash at this party or that. One of his hangouts is an estaminet into which I sometimes drop on my infrequent rounds of the town by gaslight.

Every night, nearly, I walk the dog by Corum's hotel—sometimes as late or early as 3 a. m., and as I would know him from sight by his photographs I am certain I have never seen him coming—or being carried—in. It is just one of those things.

The flowing Windsor tie, such as the sartorial trade mark of Morris Gest, is in again. It was a high favorite in the Robert W. Chambers novel days. A recent film, featuring artists who appeared with Windsor bows, helped to perk up a new interest in a vanishing style. Russell Patterson, the artist, wears a Windsor now and then, and so does Joseph Hergesheimer.

But hat manufacturers say Al Smith has spiked all chances of reviving the brown derby. It used to bob up for a seasonal flare every five years or so, but cannot get going any more. Smith's benny has been too widely kidded and cartooned for anyone to wear it with dignity. Al remains about the only person who can wear the brown derby and still be taken somewhat seriously.

The debutante heiress, Gloria Baker, has become one of the most extravagantly publicized maids of the season. And a choice target for the gossip writers. If she visits a night club and applauds the orchestra she is chronicled next day as mooning over the saxophone player. "Mimi" as she is known to her intimates, uses the same technique as her half brother, Alfred Vanderbilt. She is attended by a different donzel every time she steps out. It is a matter of record, that young Vanderbilt was never seen with the same lady two nights in succession. An accomplished turfman, he plays the field.

Canine barometer: Our cousin's Sealyham is amazingly storm conscious. A half hour before rain, lightning or thunder comes up the dog begins trotting around, panting and trembling. Just before the deluge it hides in a closet or under the bed. The severity of the storm is indicated by the animal's fright.

Every now and then our household is upset by harking back to the long ago. This morning at breakfast we let loose a gale of guffaws—my wife and I—recalling the times we used to butter our hands for the taffy pull.

The St Regis has made an entrance off Fifth avenue to its King Cole bar, where hangs the original over-exploited Maxfield Parrish portrait. It was done originally for the old Knickerbocker bar, owned by the Astor estate, and when Vincent Astor took up the active direction of the St. Regis he had it moved there. The King Cole canvas and the Ben Hur electrical chariot race sign were two of the Broadway high spots when I came to town. King Cole was the topic for much banter in the vaudeville skits and off-color gags in the saloons. I first saw it with Bob Davis and Ray Long but was more interested in living figures at one of the tables—Caruso talking to two gentlemen I recognized as Weber and Fields. And later into the room came Rex Beach in a hunting coat, just back from lassoing polar bears with Fred Stone in Alaska. Did my eyes pop?

Lois Long tells the story of the two swishy boys who stopped at a roadhouse for liquid refreshments. One said he would have a coca cola and the second said he'd like ginger ale with ice. The third ordered: "Plain water for me; I'm doing the driving."

MEET TONIGHT ON CENSUS OF CITY JOBLESS

Citizens Committee Named By Mayor to Aid Postoffice Department In Check.

First steps toward a census of the unemployed in the Mansfield district will be taken tonight when a citizens committee, appointed by Mayor Earl A. McFarland, meets in the assembly rooms of the Chamber of Commerce.

The committee will collaborate with the postoffice department by giving whatever assistance is necessary to assure a complete and accurate registration of the unemployed here, Mayor McFarland said.

The census will include all unemployed and partly employed workers in the nation in addition to those working on emergency work projects of the government.

The number of unemployed will be determined from information obtained by voluntary individual registration. Postal employes will deliver a registration card to every dwelling in the Mansfield district Nov. 16. A request that the cards be mailed before midnight, Nov. 20, appears on each questionnaire.

Leave Card at Each Home.

Only one card will be left at each home unless the postal carrier has reason to believe that there are two or more unemployed in the home, Postmaster Herman E. Homberger said. Additional cards are available at the postoffice or can be obtained on request from any carrier.

Answers of confidential nature to the questions on the unemployment card will be respected by the administrator of the National Unemployment Census, the cards point out, adding that the names of the signers will not be published or made public in any way.

The card to be used in the census lists 14 questions.

Congress directed that the census be taken to provide information to aid in the formation of a program for re-employment, social security, and unemployment relief, Homberger explained.

Members of the citizens committee, selected by Mayor McFarland are chairman, George H. Blecker, Paul W. Williams, Sidney Palmer, L. A. Cook, Gertrude B. English, Mrs. Burton R. Preston, Michael Hallabring, Mrs. James Logas, Mrs. George Mead, Rev. R. C. Goebel, Mildred E. Armstrong, Mrs. Ambrose Middleton, Rev. E. G. Corwin, Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, W. L. Miller, L. J. Ott, Edward Watkins, J. A. Herbert and David Creps.

PASTOR SPEAKS

Rev. Swoyer to Address Carpenter P. T. A. Wednesday Night.

Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First English Lutheran church, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Carpenter school P. T. A. at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the school building. He will talk on "Why Fight the Child?"

Miss Margaret West representing the Y. W. C. A., will tell of the activities of the "Y" group. Another speaker will be Mrs. Maurice Stretch who will report on the recent P. T. A. convention at Cleveland which she attended as a delegate.

Best Cough Remedy Is Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get the quickest relief from coughs due to colds, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll never use any other kind of cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really better medicine than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it has no equal. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

ROUT THAT COLD

Let It Not Hang on Thru the Use of Half-way Measures!

Beware of the "common cold"! The "common cold," doctors will tell you, is the cause of more serious trouble than anything else.

Many a person who is in a pneumonia jacket today had but a "common cold" yesterday!

Take No Chances!

Neglect no cold. Take no chances with your treatment.

Treat a cold with a cold medicine, not a "cure-all." Treat it also with internal medicine. A cold is an internal infection.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) are what you want for a cold. They are, first of all, a cold tablet, made expressly for colds. Secondly, they are internal medication, fairfold in effect.

Fourfold Effect!

First, they open the bowels.

Second, they check the infection in the system.

Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

Fourth, they tone the system and help fortify against further attack.

Bromo Quinine tablets now come sugar-coated as well as plain. Both kinds are sold by all druggists, a few cents a box.

When you feel a cold coming on, trust to no makeshift methods. Adopt the proven course of safety—take Bromo Quinine.

Taken promptly, these tablets will often break up a cold in 24 hours and that's the speed you want.

Act Promptly!

Bromo Quinine tablets may be taken with confidence. The fact that they have been in use for over 40 years and are the world's largest-selling cold tablet is your assurance of dependability.

Ask your druggist firmly for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) and accept no substitute.

A few pennies' cost may save you a world of trouble.
